Russell To Set Date for Special Session Tuesday

GOVERNOR PLANS TO LET ASSEMBLY EVOLVE OWN PLAN

Russell Reported Ready To Present Cotton Crisis To Lawmakers But That He Will Offer No Recommendations.

GEORGIA DIVIDED OVER LONG PLAN

Many Leaders Lean To Crop Reduction Proposal; Proclamation Issued by Gov. Sterling.

Governor Richard B. Russell Jr. said Sunday that he would make a definite announcement Tuesday morning regarding the date for the special session of the Georgia legislature, designed to bring about the enactment of a law to curtail or eliminate altogether the state's 1932 cotton crop.

The governor's statement was made at his home at Windsor where he has gone to spend the Labor Day holiday.

The governor was advised that Governor Ibra C. Blackwood, of South Carolina, probably would issue a call to the legislature to meet on September 15 and Governor Ross Sterling, of Texas, had called the legislature in that state to meet on Tuesday, but Governor Russell said he would "make no statement of the date the Georgia legislature will convene until Tuesday morning."

Stands on Statement.

Otherwise, the governor said, he stood on his previous statement that Georgia would decide its course "when Texas acts," refusing to state whether or not he meant when the call for the Texas legislature went forth or when some law to curtail or eliminate the cotton crop was enacted. The call for the session in Texas was sent out by Governor Sterling Sunday night, the legislature to be convened at Austin Tuesday.

Secretaries of Governor Sterling were busy in Austin, Texas, Sunday sending out a proclamation calling the legislature of that state into an extraordinary session Tuesday.

Legislators studying the governor's statement Sunday were somewhat at sea and opinion seemed divided as to the wisdom of the extra session. Several members in Atlanta over the weekend, expressed the opinion that the Russell statement was so worded that he could, with perfect propriety, wait until the Texas legislature enacts legislation, or fails to pass any control law, before calling the extra session.

Proclamation Sent Out.

In the meantime, letters containing the proclamation of the Texas governor were being dispatched from the executive offices at Austin, Texas, and a popular assumption was that Governor Russell would return to his office not later than Tuesday morning and issue the proclamation calling the Georgia lawmakers together during the coming week.

Texas produces one-third of the cotton crop of the United States and other southern governors, urged to call special sessions to pass laws controlling next year's crop, have been slow to take any action pending official notice that Governor Sterling was ready "to act."

On the other hand, the Texas governor has said that, in obedience to the demands of the farmers, he has called the session but that "they will have to ramrod it themselves." Reports from the state Sunday indicated that opinion was sharply divided over the Long plan, which provides that no cotton shall be planted next year, and the McDonald plan, which calls for a law controlling a reduction of the crop to 50 per cent of what was planted this year.

Talmadge Continues Campaign.

Eugene Talmadge, commissioner of agriculture, who has been actively engaged in a speaking campaign over Georgia for the purpose of putting pressure on Governor Russell, continued his tour.

France To Give Children Wine Tasting Lessons

PARIS, Sept. 6.—(UP)—French school children hereafter will be given instruction in "appreciation of wine."

The semi-official newspaper Le Temps said the government had made the subject part of the required public school curriculum and that pupils of all ages would be given lectures on the healthful qualities of French wines.

The decision was due to a wine industry crisis growing out of overproduction, as well as to a desire to warn French children against drinking the American cocktail.

MAN, WIFE AND SON SHOT BY ROBBERS

RAINBRIDGE, Ga., Sept. 6.—(AP)—A man, his wife and small son were shot late last night as they foiled three would-be bandits who tried to hold them up as they stepped from their automobile in the back yard of their home here.

The man, Harry Harrell, manager of a local flour store, and his family returned to their home late, coming from the store, and were about to go into the house when three men stepped from the shadows. Officers are of the opinion the men were waiting in the street for Mr. Harrell, believing him to have the store's money with him, and followed his car into the back yard.

"Hands up!" the men ordered the seven or eight-year-old boy stepped out of the running car.

With the command the men started firing, according to Sheriff W. J. Catledge. The sheriff said they evidently were amateurs, and were frightened when Mr. Harrell stepped out of the car. The intruders fled after firing and Mr. Harrell, who was only slightly wounded, secured his pistol and fired at them. One of the men lost his cap in flight, it was reported.

None of the Harrell family was seriously injured, it was reported, but all were given hospital treatment.

Officers searched a swamp on the Flint river all last night, and tonight Sheriff Catledge had placed four negroes in jail for questioning. He said no charges have been preferred against them, and he did not announce their names. Mr. Harrell was quoted as saying he was not certain whether the would-be robbers were negroes.

22 Persons Rescued As Miami Boat Sinks

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Twenty-two persons, six of whom were women, were rescued without mishap as the 32-foot motor cruiser, Al Wilda, sank last night in the Atlantic ocean 18 miles west of Bimini, an island of the Bahama group.

The rescued persons left Miami Saturday on a Labor Day weekend cruise, was brought here tonight by the motor vessel Tamara, which answered the distress signal of the Al Wilda and effected an orderly transfer of 28 passengers and four crew members. The cruiser sank 15 minutes later.

Mayor Walker's Train Wrecked in France

MACON, France, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Mayor Walker's return to the French Riviera was delayed tonight when an express train preceding his collided with a locomotive at the entrance to the station.

Three train hands were hurt and a score of passengers were bruised. Further traffic was delayed by the necessity of clearing the tracks of debris.

Beck Cites Plight of Britain In Tax Warning to New Congress

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Returning from a visit to Europe, Representative Beck, of Pennsylvania, today cited "the fate of England" as a reminder to the coming congress of the danger of indulging prosperity by excessive taxation.

ATTACK ON GAINES FEATURES SESSION OF COUNCIL TODAY

Determined Effort Will Be Made To Oust President of School Board From Post.

City council this afternoon will hold one of the most important sessions of the year.

Three outstanding bits of civic legislation are to be presented before the session, and the possibility exists that the recent controversy over the retirement of Chief of Police James L. Beavers may be injected into the meeting. In city hall circles, however, it was thought that the probability of council action in the police argument is extremely remote, in view of the so-called compromise reached last week following an executive session of the police committee.

One of the most vital ordinances to be presented for action this afternoon will be the proposal by Councilman John A. White to place every city employee and department head on a civil service basis. This paper, it is admitted, has as its principal purpose the removal from the presidency of the city board of education of W. W. Gaines, a member for the last 10 years.

To Fight Water Rate Hike.

Announcement has been made by Alderman C. Everett Millican that he will seek to defeat the proposed increase in city water rates by introducing and fostering a resolution demanding that the present rates be maintained and opposing the contemplated city-wide referendum on the proposal.

Councilman White also is author of a measure providing for stricter enforcement of the law regarding the sale of firearms, which he will introduce. White's paper is aimed at the indiscriminate sale of revolvers and pistols, and was motivated through the recent murder of C. Wheeler Mangum, prominent laundry owner, who was shot and killed in his office at the Model laundry.

From the Councilman George B. Lyle it was learned over the week-end that unless Gaines resigns as president of the board of education, or relinquishes his position as a member of the Fulton county board of registrars by 2 o'clock this afternoon he will demand that council oust Gaines. It is the contention of Lyle that he holds the presidency by virtue of his service on the county registrars board. Gaines Sunday night indicated what action he will take, if any. He reiterated over the week-end a statement made previously in which he said he was "not aware" that he holds the presidency of the board of education illegally.

Provisions of Measure.

The civil service measure, which is sponsored jointly by Councilmen White and Lyle, would place every city employee and department head on a civil service status, excepting only those in the police and fire departments by ballot. Under the ordinance a committee of five persons, consisting of three members of general council and two department heads, would compose a civil service commission. Present employees who have served the city for one or more years and who are rated by their department heads as efficient would be retained.

At a meeting held Saturday by the City and County Public Service Employees' union, the ordinance was adopted, it was announced by W. C. Caraway, secretary of the union. The ordinance would place the White-Lyle ordinance "by our friends."

Announcement was made Saturday by Councilman Raymon Brown that he would abandon his efforts to have council conduct an official investigation into alleged legislative lobbying by city employees during the recent session of the Georgia general assembly.

Garage Loses $200 To Unmasked Bandit

A lone young negro gunman late Sunday afternoon walked into the Majestic garage, 161 Ivy street, loitered about near the cash register for a few minutes and then held up the proprietor, Harry T. Wells. The thief rifled the cash register of $200, and also stole a police car lying near by.

Wells told police that the bandit appeared to be about 18 years of age, and was about 5-12 feet in height. The only other person in the garage at the time of the robbery was J. E. Turner, a mechanic, who also was held at bay while the negro scooped up the money.

Thousands To March Today As City Pays Honor To Labor; Fair, Hot Weather Promised

Colorful Parade Will Be Outstanding Feature of Conventional Labor Day Program; Races and Athletic Events on Tap at Lakewood.

With fair skies and plenty of warm sunshine in the offing, Atlanta's celebration of Labor Day will start this morning in a spirit of carnival, a spirit that promises to prevail from the parade of labor organizations, scheduled for 10:30 a. m., till the fireworks and roller-coaster rides scheduled for the evening in Lakewood park.

And in the meantime, a variety of amusements prepared for those who spend their holiday in the city will include automobile races, athletic events, hand concerts, picnics and other modes of revelry, while governmental offices of city, county, state and nation will join in paying tribute to the Great American Working Man.

The parade itself, one of the most spectacular events of the day, will contain many of the colorful features to be repeated later at the amusement park. Allegorical floats, rolling along to the strains of march music, mounted police, drummers and buglers, firemen and workers from every trade will assemble at Capitol square, marching thence from Mitchell street to Whitehall, north on Whitehall to Peachtree, then to Baker, and so on to Spring street, where the column will disband.

William Strauss will serve as marshal of the parade, with J. Sid Tiller and E. O. McClain serving as his aides. The mayor and city council and past presidents of the Atlanta Federation of Trades will head the long line of marchers.

Events at Lakewood will include automobile races, foot races, novelty races, contests of various kinds, motorboat races and fireworks. Prices at the park will not be increased, and admission to the grandstand will be free during the entire day and evening. From 5:30 till 11:30 there will be free dancing in the pavilion behind the grandstand, with the T. M. Brannon orchestra providing the music.

The committee in charge of arrangements is made up of the following: George F. Haney, chairman; L. W. Pittman, M. C. Gentle, C. F. McDonald, C. L. Webb, Fred K. Stephens, Alex. Woodson, W. C. Caraway, H. C. Taylor, Charles Williams, E. C. Jackson, H. H. David, T. L. McBrayer, J. B. McLaughlin, John W. Swann, J. L. Ivey, J. Ben Daniel, W. M. Welsh, John F. Scott, S. C. Mann, Harry Magbee; Charles B. Gramling, official announcer.

The detailed formation of the parade, as announced by the marshal, Mr. Strauss, is as follows: Formation at state capitol, corner Washington and Mitchell streets. Organizations are requested to report to the hall of machine-gun fire immediately at 10:30 a. m. over the following route: Mitchell street to Whitehall, north on Whitehall to Peachtree, then to Baker, and so on to Spring street, where the column will disband.

EUROPEAN STORMS CLAIM HEAVY TOLL

France and Germany Hit by Snow, Hail, Floods and Low Temperatures.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Three persons were reported dead, two were missing and a number were injured in storms which covered most of western continental Europe yesterday.

Much property damage was suffered to shipping and to crops in France and Germany and off their coasts. Snow, hail, floods and low temperatures did much damage in many parts of France.

Winds whipped the Baltic sea off the coast of Germany, practically annihilating shipping, and several Italian sailors were swept off a destroyer in a storm near Spezia.

FRANCE EXPERIENCES SNOW, FLOODS AND RAIN.

PARIS, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Snow, floods, rain and temperatures as low as 37 degrees Fahrenheit featured France's week-end weather today and last night.

NAVY MUTINEERS BOMBED FROM AIR BY CHILEAN FLIERS

All Coquimbo Watches Engagement From Shore; Loyal Troops Win at Talcahuano.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The Chilean air force delivered a smashing bomb and machine gun attack for 23 minutes this evening on the country's rebel navy near Coquimbo in an attempt to end the revolt.

The bombs and machine gun fire were directed chiefly at four submarines which had arrived early today from the southern coast. One of the submarines was disabled, reports reaching here said, and the crew of the other, swimming for their lives to the shore, were arrested by carabinieri.

The population of Coquimbo lined the shore to watch the brilliant engagement in the sea and air and cheered wildly as the aviators, with excellent aim, thundered bombs at the navy, the largest in Pacific waters, except for the forces of Japan and the United States.

After 23 minutes General Carlos Vergara, commanding the air squadrons, ordered the bombardment halted. It could not be determined, by renewed parleys, whether the crews of the battleship La Torre and the other rebel ships would surrender rather than undergo further bomb attacks.

LEAGUE ASSEMBLY CONVENES TODAY

Economic Ills and Disarmament Overshadow Other Issues.

BY P. I. LIPSEY JR.

GENEVA, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The League of Nations will convene in its annual assembly tomorrow with economic depression and disarmament overshadowing all other issues.

With a view to dissolving Europe's economic troubles, the assembly will deal with the proposals of the commission for European union, which has been meeting concurrently with the league council.

In attacking the world problem of economic dislocation, the assembly will have the advantage of the survey prepared by the league's economic committee upon the causes and circumstances of the prevailing disorders in industry, commerce and finance.

More immediately in the foreground will be the recommendations of the Wigan committee of international bankers, headed by Albert H. Wiggin, of New York, which recently ordered revision of reparations and war debts.

As for disarmament, the assembly must make definite preparations for the world conference, which is summoned to convene here February 20. The political situation in Europe, observers here agree, continues unpromising for success of the arms conference. The strongest hope for any real reduction in armaments is based on the belief that President Hoover will cast the influence of the American government into the balance on the side of genuine and substantial reduction of size and cost of fighting equipment.

The proposal to bring the league covenant into harmony with the Kellogg pact by plugging up all existing war gaps is again on the agenda of the assembly this year. Proposed two years ago by the British delegation, this idea was hailed with universal approval, but certain political and technical obstacles have arisen and its early realization seems improbable.

Sheriff Faces Puzzle In Levying Upon Bees

NAHUNTA, Ga., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Sheriff E. B. Newton, of Brantley county, said today he was called on to levy against 80 hives of bees, for back taxes due since 1922. He found the bees disinclined to move and could secure no reinforcements from his staff of deputies. So, with proper care and circumspection, the sheriff lacked a notice on the hives, declaring that the levy has been made.

The bees are the property of J. J. Wilder, of Waycross, known as the "bee king of Georgia" and the dispute over taxes dates from the creation of Brantley county.

In the event the bees cannot read, the eviction notice, or refuse to vacate, the next move will be up to the sheriff.

'CHUTE SAVES PILOT OF BURNING PLANE

Walter Hunter 'Bails Out' at 200 Feet and Fall Is Checked at 20 Feet.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Walter J. Hunter, 25, of Sparta, Ill., escaped with secondary burns when his plane burst into flames and he was forced to take to his parachute at an altitude of only 200 feet in the national air races today.

Hunter's parachute did not open until he was 20 feet from the ground. Hunter had just got his ship back into control after being forced down Friday at Terre Haute, Ind., in the Bendix derby from Burbank, Cal., to Cleveland.

He was making a fast climb, he said, when there was an explosion, probably due to a broken or loose gas line connection. Before he could jump he was burned on the hands, face and left ankle.

He was taken to a hospital, where it was said he would be out in a day or two.

The plane was wrecked and forced Hunter out of the Thompson race.

"I was flying at an altitude of about 250 feet when the engine quit. I immediately switched on the reserve tank and it started again. Just then flames began to shoot out from the cockpit, burning my face and hands."

"I then cut the switch and tried to bring the ship down with the rudder. However, the parachute was not hot for so many years old, collected $2,500 life insurance following his son's death, Sheriff Whitte said.

Young Williams, whose furlough from the navy was to expire in New York August 7, was found shot to death near an automobile not far from Augusta on the morning of August 5. Officers said the automobile was owned by the father and had unusual tires. The tread of the tires and of automobile tracks near the body corresponded to the car he said.

Officers said young Williams was married and had a wife and baby living somewhere in Maine, but they did not know where.

The minister was in the Richmond county jail tonight. The grand jury does not meet until September 21.

Atlanta Man Killed In Highway Accident

James G. Henson, veteran Atlanta street car operator, was killed Sunday afternoon when his automobile skidded off the Carrollton-Villa Rica highway. Mr. Henson's brother, R. H. Henson, who was a passenger in the automobile, escaped with only slight injuries.

Mr. Henson and his brother were returning to Atlanta from Carrollton. The accident took place about seven miles from Carrollton, the car jumping from the highway when it struck a dirt road at the end of a stretch of pavement.

Henson, who was 52 years old, lived at 748 Kennedy street, N. W. He had been employed by the Georgia Power Company for more than 20 years. For the last several years he had "run" on the Marietta-Inman Yards and East Fair street route.

REV. N. WILLIAMS OF ROCHELLE, GA. ACCUSED OF CRIME

"As Innocent as Little Baby," Says Accused Man; Warrant Sworn Out By Private Detective of Augusta.

PRISONER'S STORIES SAID TO CONFLICT

Bullet Wounds in Youth's Body Correspond to Caliber of Pistol Borrowed By Father.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Sept. 6.—(AP)—The Rev. J. N. Williams, of Rochelle, Ga., was arrested at Rochelle today by Richmond county officers on a warrant charging him with the murder of his son, Ralston Grady Williams, a United States sailor, on a lonely road near Augusta on August 5.

Sheriff N. Gary Whitte, of Richmond county, one of the arresting officers, said he was told by the minister that the father had obtained leave for his son from a naval ship on the claim that the youth's sister was gravely ill. The sheriff said he learned the sister, a student at the Martha Berry schools, Rome, Ga., was not seriously ill, and that the youth's sister was gravely ill.

The minister, who formerly had held pastorates at Adrian and Girard, Ga., not far from the spot where young Williams' body was found near a highway, denied the charge. "I am as innocent as my little baby," he said.

The warrant for the arrest was sworn out by Henry Day, a private detective of Augusta, who interested himself in the case. The investigation of the officers said the automobile that bullet wounds in the son's body corresponded to the caliber of the borrowed weapon. The minister, about 30 years old, collected $2,500 life insurance following his son's death, Sheriff Whitte said.

Zepplin Approaches Coast of Portugal

HAMBURG, Germany, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The German dirigible Graf Zeppelin, returning from a flight to Brazil, approached the coast of Portugal tonight after another successful crossing of the south Atlantic ocean.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the ship, reported by radio to the Hamburg American Steamship lines that the dirigible was at 4,155 north, 12,554 west, 5,485 p. m., central European time (11:45 a. m. E. S. T.).

The position was less than 200 miles off Oporto, Portugal, indicating the Graf Zeppelin is returning via the Atlantic rather than the Mediterranean route, which it followed on the outgoing journey.

Tobacco Sales Law URGED BY BRANTLEY

Blackshear Leader Wants
Issue Included in Extra
Session Call.

VALDOSTA, Ga., Sept. 6.—The probability of an extra session of the legislature being called by Governor Russell to consider the cotton situation has brought about a revival of activity in enacting a law in Georgia requiring a referendum in the mode of selling tobacco.

A. T. Brantley, of Blackshear, generally referred to as the "father of the tobacco growing industry in Georgia," is writing members of the legislature in south Georgia, urging them to request Governor Russell to include the tobacco measure in the extra call, if it is issued.

Mr. Brantley has also urged this upon the governor and to this time considerable impression is being made upon the members of the legislature in south Georgia.

The proposed law will be modeled after the South Carolina law, requiring tobacco to be graded and tied before being offered for sale on the warehouse floor. Mr. Brantley, who has been an active factor in developing tobacco growing, gives it as his opinion that unless such a law is enacted Georgia farmers will be expected to get a fair price for their tobacco and that the opportunity for a cash crop will be lost to Georgia forever.

The proposal has been before the legislature before, in a tentative way, and members heretofore opposed to the plan are known to be now in favor of it. The plan is favored by the United States Tobacco Association, and has been urged from that quarter for two or three years. It seems certain that if an extra session is called this matter will be included, and will become a major legislative issue to be settled during the session.

DISTRICT FEDERATION TO MEET IN TENNILE

TENNILE, Ga., Sept. 6.—Tentative plans for the annual meeting of the Tenth District Federation of Women's Clubs, which convenes here October 9, with the Tenth Woman's Club as hostess, were made yesterday at a meeting of the club at the Community Clubhouse. Mrs. Roy Smith, the new president, was in the chair and outlined the plan of work for the year.

The following members were appointed by her as a general committee on all arrangements for the convention: Mrs. W. R. Smith, chairman; Mrs. W. C. Little, Mrs. F. T. Brock, Mrs. M. G. Smith, Mrs. A. S. Brown, Mrs. H. M. Franklin, Mrs. Will Brantley, Mrs. Wilbur Smith, Mrs. A. E. Gilmore and Mrs. George Franklin.

The business sessions, with Mrs. Glenn Stovall, of Thomson, and Mrs. S. G. Lang, of Sandersville, presiding, will be held at the school auditorium and the luncheon and social features at the clubhouse. Besides the district officers and chairmen and representatives from the 25 clubs in the district, other prominent clubwomen are expected, including the state president, Mrs. S. V. Sanford, of Athens, and other state officers. Mrs. J. J. Pilcher, of Wrens, chairman of programs, has called a meeting of her committee to be held in Louisville this week to arrange the federation program. The members of this committee are Mrs. Pilcher, Mrs. Glenn Stovall, Thomson district president; Mrs. S. G. Lang, Sandersville district vice president; Mrs. W. P. English, Warrenton, and Mrs. Roy Smith, Tennile, president of hostess club.

TOOLE NOT TO HEAD CLUB OF SUMMERS

MACON, Ga., Sept. 6.—(P)—Mayor G. Glen Toole said today he has decided to decline the presidency of F. B. Summers' "Georgia State Roosevelt-Club" last, once, organization of a group rivaling that originating in Meriwether county might weaken the Roosevelt movement in the state.

The presidency was tendered him by Mr. Summers Friday night after a meeting of 15 persons interested in the Atlanta-born movement. The Summers organization is opposed by the Fulton County Roosevelt-for-President Club as well as by the Meriwether organization, headed by Dr. R. B. Gilbert.

After the initiation the crowd will leave for Savannah beach, where a banquet and dance will be held. En route to the beach there will be an inspection of the site presented to the legion by F. H. Haer.

SAVANNAH HOST CITY TO WORKMEN'S CIRCLE

SAVANNAH, Ga., Sept. 6.—(P)—N. Channin, of New York, delivered the principal address today at the opening session of the three-day convention of the southeastern district of the workmen's circle. This is the twelfth annual convention and is being held in the Jewish Educational Alliance building with more than 100 delegates present.

William Scheer, district chairman, opened the meetings and then turned the meeting over to Harry Applebaum, secretary. The district comprises Georgia, Florida, Tennessee and Alabama.

During the morning and afternoon sessions of the convention the city's activities were discussed. A children's conference was held, the sixth annual one for them. Addresses were made by both teachers and students.

Among the teachers who spoke were Morris Weisbord, Savannah; L. Silver, Chattanooga; L. Lasavin, Atlanta; L. Degan, Akron, Ohio, who will be the new teacher at Atlanta; Samuel Horstein, of the Jewish Alliance, also spoke, as did Miss Minnie Farber, secretary of the district's school clubs.

Students who spoke were Sarah Landau, Atlanta; Boboo Ross, Atlanta; Mary Press, Chattanooga, and Sarah Chazan, Macon. Joe Jacobs, young attorney of Atlanta, spoke in behalf of the Young Men's Circle Club.

Tonight was held the graduation exercises at which diplomas were presented to five Savannah students. The convention will adjourn Tuesday.

"Old-Timers" Plan Fiddling Contest To Pick Champion

Georgia's only official fiddling championship, conducted for the past 17 years by the Georgia Old Time Fiddlers' Association, will be held at the Atlanta auditorium on Friday and Saturday, September 25 and 26, it is announced by Virgil W. Shepard, who has acted as secretary of the association since its organization. Mr. Shepard invites ambitious fiddlers who think they can qualify for prizes to enter their names with him. His address is 21 Courtland street.

The title is now held by Joe Collins, of Stockbridge, who will defend it this year against such former champions as Fiddlin' John Carson, Gid Tanner, A. A. Gray and others. The state championship among fiddlers may not attract so much public attention as Bobby Jones won in golf, but it means real money to the titleholder, for he usually embarks on a tour of the state, leading fiddling conventions in the smaller towns, and his prestige invariably draws a crowd.

Hen Lays Portrait.

GAINESVILLE, Ga., Sept. 6.—(UP)—An egg, with the almost perfect likeness of a hen embossed on the shell, attracted considerable attention when exhibited here by J. C. Bowen, owner of the hen who laid the egg. Upraised lines on one end of the shell clearly show the head, tail, body and feet of a hen.

Deputy Game Warden.
MONTEZUMA, Ga., Sept. 6.—Fred N. Kleckley, of Oglethorpe, has been appointed deputy state game warden with jurisdiction over five counties. Mr. Kleckley has served in this capacity for some time as county warden.

Held for Unexcused.
WAYCROSS, Ga., Sept. 6.—Henry Golden, negro, is held in the Ware county jail on a charge of murder, alleged to have stabbed his wife, Emma Golden, to death while she was ironing clothes. John Thomas, negro, is in a local hospital in a critical condition, suffering from a knife wound said to have been inflicted by Golden.

In Recorder's Race.
WAYCROSS, Ga., Sept. 6.—Mack Barnes, well-known young attorney of Waycross, announces today that he has reached a definite decision to become a candidate for the office of city recorder, subject to the primary of the democratic party to be held Tuesday, October 27.

Agent Resigns.
WAYCROSS, Ga., Sept. 6.—Chester N. Bennett, of Waycross, who has been serving for some time as agricultural agent for Jenkins county, has resigned to take effect October 1. Mr. Bennett will enter the commercial hatchery business in Rome.

Buys Dairy Farm.
VALDOSTA, Ga., Sept. 6.—C. C. Strickland, until recently a resident of Miami, has purchased the R. T. Hodges dairy farm and equipment near Habre and will engage in the dairy business extensively.

Baptist Meeting.
LYERLY, Ga., Sept. 6.—The fortieth annual session of the Chattahoochee County Baptist Association meets with New Hope church, seven miles southeast of Lyerly, Tuesday and Wednesday.

BARCELONA IS QUIET AS STRIKE IS ENDED

City Resumes Its Normal State After Disorders of Last Four Days.

BARCELONA, Spain, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Barcelona was free of sporadic attacks on constituted authority today for the first time in four days. Sunday passed normally after collapse of the syndicalist strike, had brought to an end violence and bloodshed in Spain's greatest seaport and industrial center.

Extra forces of police and civil guards, which occupied strategic points until after the collapse of the strike late yesterday, began to retire this afternoon, while reassured citizens flocked to their customary haunts.

For the first time in several days, Barcelona had telephone connections with the rest of Spain. Garbage-littered streets, which had begun to threaten the city with pestilence, received a thorough cleaning. Public utility services were resumed and transportation lines helped the city resume its customary activity.

Only glass factory workers, numbering 6,000, and striking telephone company employees were expected to hold out tomorrow against the general agreement to resume work, announced early today by Mayor Jaime Aygüé.

21 Reds Seized.
MADRID, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Twenty-one communists were arrested and a quantity of arms seized today when police broke up an attempted demonstration.

7.1 Inches of Rain Fall In Miami in 24 Hours

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Miami experienced a 7.1 inch rainfall in the 24-hour period ending at 8 o'clock tonight, the weather bureau reported. The rain continued tonight.

The rainfall was classified as unusual by Richard W. Gray, government meteorologist, who said it was in no way connected with any tropical disturbance.

MAE OVER-EMOTES IN CAPITOL FILM
Mae Clarke can scream and laugh hysterically better than any actress on the American screen. It has been said that she is a "waterloo bridge" in the Capitol. In fact, it is life in the raw, very real, and very true. Mae is a painted lady of the London streets in quest of soldiers on leave. During an air raid she meets Kent Douglas, a Canadian soldier, and there is a great love. But the all-consuming passion merely causes heartaches and doubt as to whether she must leave her past. Kent Douglas is a fine actor and saves the film. He deserves some good parts, after making as much out of a poor one as he does in "Waterloo Bridge."

The picture leaves an audience somewhat in doubt as to the ultimate outcome, as the hero is just dashing away to the war, but then to drop in and leave the girl at the altar, as most of the audience expected, and the rest hoped for, would have made things messy.

The comedy is good, if not screamingly funny, and the news reel is, as always, entertaining.
—RILEY MCCOY.

LAUREL AND HARDY FUNNIERTHAN EVER

Two of the cinema world's funniest comedians, Stanley Laurel and Oliver Hardy, appear at the Fox theater this week in their first feature-length film, "Pardon Us."

Always provocative of a laugh, and frequently of unrestrained side-splitting mirth, the Hardy and Laurel duo are every bit as good as usual in this picture, even excelling themselves in many scenes. One thing, albeit, is proven by "Pardon Us," and that is the Hardy-Laurel type of fun-making is not easily adaptable to multi-reel features.

"Pardon Us" has a lot of timely incidents in its plot make-up. Prison riots on a grand scale, such as hint of recent news events and the growing institution of making bread for home consumption with a "little left over" to sell are included. Some songful cotton plantation scenes are injected into the feature.

A special attraction of the week's screen program, "Monsters of the Deep," being an adventure in fishing with plenty of action, thrills and keen natural interest, is beyond a doubt one of the finest things ever put into celluloid—and that is barring none, not even the most loudly ballyhooed feature films.

On the stage we have one of Fanchon and Marco's most novel creations, the "Mickey Mouse" idea, called for lots of fun, costumes and "freak routine." While slightly lacking in the "pink flesh" appeal usually offered by the Fanchon and Marco Sunkist Beauties, the ensemble numbers of the "Mickey Mouse" idea more than atone for this by mere virtue of their unusualness.

The principals in the screen production this week offer variety and Grade A vaudeville, being for the most part harmonized with the "Mickey Mouse" idea. For specialized interest, this week's bill can't be beat for the kiddies.

A new short attraction on the screen, started in serial form this week and taking the place of the Bobby Jones golf serial, is Bill Tilden's "Tennis Technique," a production that will lose nothing by comparison with the golf series.

FATHER OF FIVE SHOT TO DEATH

NETONG, N. J., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Vincent Esposito, 35, father of five children, was shot and killed during an argument, witnesses said, in a section of woods near here today.

A group of laborers said they saw the slaying. They said the assailant fled into the underbrush. State troopers began a search for Enrico Lepore.

EXCLUSION OF CHINESE FROM MEXICO DENIED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—(AP)—A telegram from President Ortiz Rubio saying the "Chinese have not been driven from Mexico" was received tonight by Paul Lineberger, president of the American Friends of China Society.

Lineberger yesterday advised the Mexican executive that two Washington Chinese societies—the Chinese Students' Club and the American Friends of China—hoped President Ortiz Rubio would issue a stay order against the expulsion of Chinese from Mexico.

Lehigh Benefits.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The bulk of the $300,000 estate of Dr. Charles William MacFarlane, economist, author and engineer, who died here May 15, was left to Lehigh University because he believed "it would do more good if left to a smaller and less prosperous university," it was learned today.

ANNUAL CONVENTION OF VETERANS BEGINS

Mayor Key, of Atlanta, Is Among Distinguished Delegates at New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The men who fought under the Stars and Stripes in Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines in 1898 tonight opened the 33rd annual national encampment of the United Spanish War Veterans, with memorial services for deceased members in municipal auditorium.

Several thousand delegates, from Maine to California and from Hawaii to Panama were in attendance for the sessions, which will turn to business tomorrow and continue through Thursday.

Edward S. Matthews, Columbus, chief justice of the Ohio supreme court and commander in chief of the organization, arrived during the night and was escorted into the city by the United States marine band. He was among the speakers at tonight's memorial on a program which also included addresses by Mrs. Edith H. Bird, Toledo, Ohio, national president of the U. S. W. V. auxiliary, and Colonel William L. Grayson, Savannah, Ga., past national commander.

When the veterans' organization proper begins its sessions tomorrow, simultaneous meetings will be opened by the national auxiliary and the Mystic Order of the Serpents, fun-making circle, headed by C. R. Judd, Los Angeles, supreme grand grandissimo.

The distinguished delegates in attendance was Mayor James L. Key, of Atlanta, whose right to attend was upheld by a Georgia court after a taxpayer had sought a restraining order on the grounds that the mayor was "traveling too much."

His recent trip to France with the American mayors and attendant criticisms of prohibition created a furor in his home city.

COLBERT, BOLAND STAR AT GEORGIA

"Secrets of a Secretary" is playing at Keith's Georgia the remainder of the week. Had anyone but Claudette Colbert played the part of the secretary, Mary Boland would have stolen the show. And had Mary Boland not been in the picture, it is doubtful that even Claudette Colbert could have saved it. As it happens, however, the picture is good entertainment.

We need not spend a great deal of time on Colbert. She combines, in our eyes, the several virtues of competence, competence and moderation. In "Secrets of a Secretary" she avoids the many quagmires that spread all over the story, and turns in some swell acting.

Mary Boland is a converted legitimate actress, who has been a headliner for years. As a movie actress, she seems to have lost none of her ability to get the last ounce of comedy out of any line that's given her. And the director wisely gave her plenty of lines.

Herbert Marshall is new to us, but has very little to do anyway. He plays a very subdued but determined English nobleman who is quite enamored of Claudette. Nearly anybody could have been convincing in a part like that.

As for the rest of the show, it is the usual raudyville and short subjects, except for one feature. The Giersdorf Sisters, a trio of singers, are the best of their kind we have ever seen. They do several ordinary numbers, extraordinarily well, and then, just as you are about to accept them as capable performers, they break out into "St. Louis Blues" as it has never been done before. Rhythmic minor chords, and harmony blended into much too short a moment of perfect blues. They are as good as all the rest of the show, pictures and all, put together.
—JOHN A. ULLMAN.

Briand Cuts Cigarettes From 60 to 10 a Day

PARIS, Sept. 6.—(UP)—Foreign Minister Aristide Briand revealed today that he had reduced his daily average of cigarettes from 60 to 10.

Briand, who is known as an almost constant smoker, said he had cut down steadily during his rest at his Cocheron farm, where he was sent by physicians to prevent a breakdown last month.

The foreign minister also said he won three county prizes for fine cattle raised on his farm. He arrived in Paris this morning and departed within a few hours for Geneva to attend the League of Nations sessions there.

'Alfalfa Bill' Hits Banking System As Cause of Present World Ills

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Governor William H. "Alfalfa Bill" Murray of Oklahoma, today blamed the nation's system of banking and credits for the economic depression.

At tomorrow's Labor Day celebration on Soldier field, Governor Murray said he would announce a program "to remedy the defects in this system."

"And I will challenge any banker in Chicago, New York or elsewhere to say my program is not sound," the governor said.

Brought to Chicago by labor leaders, Governor Murray said his visit was not a "presidential fence builder" and said his address, to be extemporaneous, would hinge on labor problems and unemployment.

Replying to queries on his prohibition views, Governor Murray said, "the whole question in the 1932 campaign should be one based upon the correction of our economic errors." He predicted the depression "will be worse 12 months from now than it is today."

"Constitutional questions," the governor continued, "should never become partisan questions, but the people should be left free of all prejudice, anger and fanaticism, either partisan or ecclesiastical, so that such constitutional provisions should be the reflex of sober second thought."

The battle-cry in 1932, Governor Murray said, "must be for bread and butter, bacon and beans."

INSURANCE BUSINESS SHOWS BIG INCREASE

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(AP)—A half million dollar increase in the volume of new business for 1930, following a substantial increase each year during the last decade, was reported today in a survey of life insurance companies authorized in New York. The results were announced by George S. Van Schick, state superintendent of insurance.

Combined assets of life companies represented in New York at the beginning of 1931 totaled $16,208,292,642, an increase during 1930 of $1,190,351,125 and an increase of almost 100 per cent over the 1923 figure.

Combined income for 1930 was $3,957,945,028 and the disbursements were $2,787,122,637. Of that amount $2,041,295,915 went to policyholders and their beneficiaries.

The New York state business in the insurance industry during 1930 was valued at $19,157,656,874.

ATTRACTIVE CONCERTS SLATED FOR SEASON

Glass, McDonald To Bring Brilliant Artists to Auditorium.

Probably the most attractive list of concerts ever offered in Atlanta is announced for the approaching fall and winter at the auditorium by Marvin McDonald and Dudley Glass, both identified for years with musical affairs.

The all-star concert series will present the following six events:

The Don Cosacovs, Russian male chorus, on November 11; Lawrence Tibbett, leading baritone of the Metropolitan Opera Company, on December 16; Amelia Galli-Curci, coloratura soprano, on January 6; La Argentina, the Spanish dancer, on January 29; Vladimir Horowitz, Russian pianist, on February 22; and Schudi Menahin, the boy violinist, on March 28.

Season tickets will go on sale Monday, September 28, the sale continuing one week, through October 3. Through arrangements with the Davison-Paxon Company, which has provided special facilities on its main floor, the sale will be conducted at that store.

"The large capacity of the auditorium has made it possible for us to offer exceptionally low rates for the season tickets," Mr. McDonald said. "These will range from $9 for the most choice seats down to $4 for balcony locations, certainly the lowest schedule at which these artists ever have been heard. Seats for single concerts must necessarily be higher, ranging from $2.50 to $1 each."

Spreading of Hoover Propaganda Laid to Women's Federation Body

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—(UP)—A charge that the George Washington bicentennial committee of the General Federation of Women's Clubs had issued a pamphlet which reads "like a partisan campaign document" by the republican national committee in the interest of the candidacy of President Hoover for re-election, was made today by Nellie Taylor Ross, vice-chairman of the degenerate national committee.

The pamphlet in question, Mrs. Ross said, takes the form of a suggested program for celebration of the admission of individuals to citizenship, favorably comparing the careers of President Hoover and George Washington, and "casts him (Mr. Hoover) rather than the first president."

"It is inconceivable that the chairman and the members of the bicentennial committee of the federation were unaware of the fact that 1932 will be a presidential election year," Mrs. Ross said, "and that President Hoover is already planning to participate in that election as a candidate and that the parallel, which is attempted to be drawn between the careers of George Washington and President Hoover, will be certain to lend itself to a political interpretation."

"It is difficult to understand how these representatives of the federation can disregard the convictions of thousands of women, members of the general federation, who do not believe that Mr. Hoover merits the fulsome comparison with the first president."

"The pamphlet," Mrs. Ross continued, "is written upon the assumption that no one can properly criticize the policies of this administration. Likewise, it seems to me the pamphlet attributes to Mr. Hoover achievements credit for which is given to him by no one else."

"The pamphlet creates an altogether fictitious character for Mr. Hoover and, whether intentionally or not, exalts him rather than the first president in whose honor it was presumably issued."

"I am impelled," Mrs. Ross said, "to express my conviction that it should be withdrawn."

RACING AUTOMOBILE KILLS ONE, HURTS TEN

MONZA, Italy, Sept. 6.—(UP)—A new model Alfa Romeo racing automobile taking part in the annual grand prix today plunged through the safety rail at a sharp turn and into a crowd of spectators.

One person was killed and 10 others were seriously injured. The car was driven by the Frenchman, Etancelin, a wealthy Rouen textile merchant. He was slightly injured.

The accident was similar to the disaster at the track in 1928 when Emilio Materassi's racing machine left the track and killed 23 persons. Later a safety rail was erected, but it did not prevent the smash-up today.

FIVE HURT AS RACING CAR LEAVES MICHIGAN TRACK

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Five persons were injured, four of them seriously, today by a racing automobile which left the track of the Washtenaw county fair grounds during a 50-mile race.

The injured are: Ed Mitchell, 27, Dearborn, leg fractured; David Brown, 20, Detroit, spine injured; Cecil Jackson, negro, Ypsilanti, leg fractured; and John Ladd, 11, Ann Arbor, bruised.

The five were standing around an automobile which Mitchell had been driving in the race, but which had been pulled to the inner rail and parked for repairs. They were struck by an automobile driven by Joseph Phipps Jr., Detroit.

WOMAN KILLED WHEN AUTOMOBILE OVERTURNS

RAY ST. LOUIS, Miss., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Mrs. Augusta Grombach, 31, of New Orleans, was killed today as she was pinned beneath an overturned automobile on the Old Spanish Trail eight miles west of here. Her husband, Herbert Grombach, escaped with slight injuries. They were on route from New Orleans to Biloxi for a week-end vacation when their car skidded in loose gravel and overturned.

Mrs. Grombach died from a broken neck.

BOY KILLED, THREE HURT WHEN AUTO OVERTURNS

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Charles Harney, 13, was killed and his mother and two sisters slightly hurt at 11 o'clock this morning when their automobile overturned 20 miles east of Memphis.

Miss Katherine Fields, who was driving the car; her sister, Miss Cora Fields, and their mother, Mrs. J. R. Fields, were taken to a Memphis hospital for treatment.

CHILD, 3, DIES; 6 HURT IN TENNESSEE ACCIDENT

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Katie Lounette Jackson, 3 years old, was killed instantly today and six others were injured when their automobile was overturned in a collision with another, Charles A. Nelson, of Coal Creek, Tenn., said by police to have been the driver of the other car, was arrested and later released on $1,500 bond.

ROGERS, Ark., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Two youths were killed and three others injured in a head-on collision of two automobiles here early today.

Duval Alexander, 20, Fort Smith, was killed instantly and Lester Kelly, 20, of Lowell, died in a hospital here.

John T. Allison, of Chicago, was cut about the face when the car in which he was riding with Alexander crashed into another driven by Robert Lattshaw, of Rogers. Floyd Ford, 16, and Kelly were riding with Lattshaw. Allison was visiting relatives in Winslow.

Fatal Anniversary.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Thirty years ago today, in the midst of the gaily attending Pan-American exposition here, this city was plunged into gloom when Leon F. Coughlin, 34, a Chicagoan, who took the life of President William McKinley.

SIGNS OF MALARIA?

Quick Relief can be had

There is no better remedy known than Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic. Nearly three generations of Southern families have placed full confidence in it, and today there is nothing "just as good."

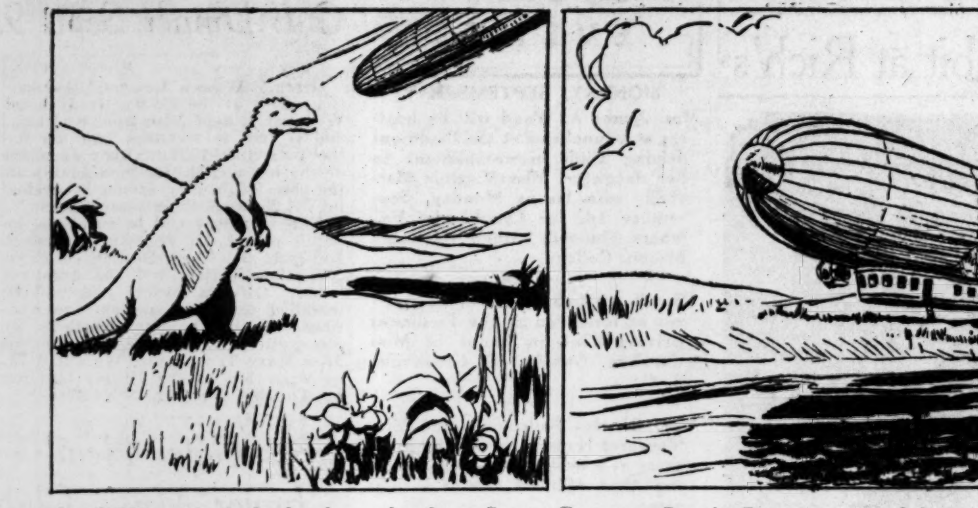

Mothers who are always busy can't afford to neglect those first signs of malaria. When household duties drag heavily and you have to force yourself, there's something wrong with your blood. You need Quinine to drive out malaria, and Iron to rebuild the health-giving red corpuscles.

Get a bottle now, and begin rapid recovery of appetite and vitality.

Tune in on "Who's Who?" the Grove's Tonic Two" Every Monday, Wednesday, Friday at 12:15 Noon, Central Standard Time, 1:15 p. m., Eastern Standard Time, Columbia Broadcasting System, Station WGST.

TARZAN AT THE EARTH'S CORE No. 85

The O-220 cruised slowly above the Gyor Cors while watchful eyes aboard it scanned the ground below. But the only living things they saw were huge dinosaurs. Disturbed by the motors of the dirigible, the great beasts trotted angrily around in circles. Sometimes one, sighting the ship above him, would gallop after it, bellowing angrily. Or another would charge the elliptical shadow that moved along the ground directly beneath the O-220.

Far away Captain Zuppper saw a lofty mountain range visible in the up-curving distance. A river came down from them. Knowing that men who became lost often follow a river's course, he steered the dirigible toward it. Gliding above the river they at length came to a large lake. It had been some time since they had had fresh water and meat. So Zuppper decided to land and make camp. A little later the great ship settled gently to rest upon a grassy meadow.

LABOR DAY celebrations in America and the dedication of the new American church in Paris are among outstanding program features of the National Broadcasting Company today.

These events will bring to the microphone William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor; Frank Morrison, secretary of the same labor group; and United States ambassador Walter E. Edge, envoy to France.

Green, delivering his annual labor message to America, will be heard addressing a huge workers' convocation in Ottawa, Iowa. He will speak from 2:30 to 3:30 p. m., through an NBC-WEAF network. Green will be introduced by John L. Lewis, veteran labor leader and president of the Iowa federation. Loud speakers, covering eight miles, will carry his voice locally to labor throngs from Milwaukee, St. Louis, Kansas City, Omaha, Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, and St. Joseph, Mo.

Secretary Morrison, addressing from 150,000 to 200,000 laboring men and women assembled in Soldier Field, Chicago, will be heard over an NBC-WJZ network from noon to 12:45 o'clock.

Ambassador Edge may be heard addressing attendees to the dedicatory reception in the new American religious and social center on the Quai d'Orsay in Paris. His remarks will be preceded by a 35-minute recital presented by Marcel Dupre, church organist, and Doris Doe, contralto of the Metropolitan Opera Company. Robert Davis, director of the American library in Paris, and Dr. Joseph Wilson Cochran, pastor, also will talk. The Paris program is scheduled to be heard over an NBC-WJZ network from 2 to 3 p. m.

Song hits which he has recorded and which are listed among the best sellers will be featured on the nightly programs of Bing Crosby, radio's latest find, over the Columbia broadcasting system network during this week. Bing will be heard nightly except Tuesday, from 9 to 9:15, assisted by Victor Young's orchestra.

Among the popular hits he will feature are "Guilty," "Pardon Me, Pretty Baby," and "Come With Me."

LIFE behind the scenes of the legitimate stage will be described in detail when Rachel Hartzell, Jewish lady in "Cloudy With Showers," Broadway comedy, will be interviewed by Nelson Hesse, Columbia writer, during the "Views and Interviews" program from 4 to 4:15 this afternoon. Miss Hartzell's part in "Cloudy With Showers" is her first featured role. Before taking this role she won favorable comment for performances in "Little Accident" and "Skidding."

BRITONS PROTEST DOLE REDUCTION

LONDON, Sept. 6.—(AP)—A crowd of several thousand persons staged a demonstration in Hyde park today, while political leaders were preparing for the opening of parliament this week and announced its intention to attempt to see Prime Minister MacDonald at the house of commons Tuesday to protest against cuts in the dole and in wages.

The crowd was made up of members of the independent labor party and a contingent under the national unemployment workers' movement. It converged on Oxford Circus from all parts of London and, headed by a band of unemployed men, marched to Hyde park, where banners inscribed "No Wage Cut," "Stop This Starvation," and "Dole Reduction."

A hundred policemen watched the demonstration. The speakers included J. Beckett, member of parliament for Peckham, and F. Wise, member for Leicester East. The meeting passed resolutions protesting the government's plan for meeting the apparent deficit of approximately $600,000,000 in the budget.

The cabinet's program is completed, but it will hold a brief meeting tomorrow to decide the final lineup for the battle in the house of commons. It is expected that a majority of more than 50 votes at least will be secured by the government.

British labor will meet tomorrow at the trades union congress at Bristol to map out the plans of its warfare against the administration, the plans of which, it claims, are antagonistic to the workers.

Prime Minister MacDonald and other principal figures in the present crisis spent the week-end ostensibly resting, but actually most of them were at their country homes with their families.

The affiliated membership of the congress will be reported to tomorrow's meeting as 3,719,401, a decrease of 24,919. The 1928 figure was 3,744,320.

The new member of the firm participated in a debate for several years on the Davidson and Emory teams, taking part in more than 50 contests. Last year he was a member of the Phi Kappa Phi honor society, and was the press, and was assistant instructor in business law. He is a member of the Beta Theta Phi national social fraternity, Phi Delta Phi, and Omicron Delta Kappa, national leadership fraternities.

The 24th annual meeting of the National Tax Association will be held at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel October 12-16, with approximately 1,000 delegates and some 100 guests, announced by the R. C. Norman, chairman of the local committee on arrangements.

Fulton courthouse will observe Labor Day by closing its doors for the day. Agreement to the full holiday was reached at the last regular meeting of the board of county commissioners.

James F. Watson, president Atlanta School of Oratory and Expression, announces that all departments of that institution will be open beginning today. Various courses in expression and dramatic reading and speech correction are being offered this term.

Luther Still, Fulton representative, will deliver the principal address at a meeting of the Columbus Federation of Labor in that city this morning. Mr. Still will outline the origin and development of the labor movement in the state.

Divine Berates Walker As 'Useless' to N. Y.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The Rev. Dr. Cortland Meyers, of Los Angeles, today told the congregation of the First Baptist church, a Bronx, that the French government or Walker was "just a clothier's dummy" and that "a man like Benito Mussolini is needed to clean up New York city."

"To stop it, I would call out the army, the militia. You are not doing anything. The mayor is not doing anything—he is in Europe drinking champagne and having badges pinned on him by the French government. Just another clothier's dummy. Give Mussolini one month and he would clean up New York city."

While the O-220 settled down by the silent inland seas, hundreds of miles away Jason Gridley and his four companions pushed their tunnel upward toward the earth surface. The tunnel was now so long that the men worked frantically, fearing the Horibi would discover their absence from the cave-prison and search for them. As Jason at its far end stepped at the dirt above him, there broke suddenly upon his ears what sounded like the muffled reverberations of rifle shots.

The American hardly knew what to make of the sounds. He redoubled his effort to drive his narrow shaft upward. No more did he hear the sounds that had filled him with hope. Instead, the earth trembled as though many animals were racing over it. Now he was positive he must be near the surface of the ground. Then suddenly a shot sounded almost directly above him. He heard the thud of a heavy body, the earth above him gave way and something dropped into the shaft upon his head.

Cross Sections of Life In Gate City of South

An extensive program of college courses is offered this year by the Georgia Tech Evening school, 223 Walton street, in order to care for many Atlanta men and women unable to leave the city for study. These courses are in addition to the already big schedule of courses carried in the interest of the regular enrollment of 700. Registration offices are open all day and until late every night this week.

Senator Walter F. George and President Spright Dowell will address the Atlanta Mercer alumni at the Cox-Carlton hotel at 6 o'clock Tuesday night. Their appearance before the Atlanta body will follow their broadcast to 75 other Mercer groups over the radio. Officers of the local association in charge of the dinner are George M. Sparks, president; Guy Moore, vice president; Edwin Preston, secretary, and E. A. Richardson, treasurer.

T. H. Austin Jr. has been appointed as program chairman at the Speech Arts Club, Atlanta School of Oratory and Expression, 40 Wesley Memorial Church building, at 6 o'clock Tuesday evening. A regular program of short, pointed and instructive talks on vital current topics has been arranged.

Atlanta mothers may have their children up to 4 years of age given free medical examinations under the direction of the city health officer at the following places during this week: Tuesday, Luckie Street school and Peoples Street school; Wednesday, Fair Street school; Thursday, Forrest Street school; Friday, J. L. Key school. All centers open at 1:30 p. m.

Postponement of the joint meeting of the Atlanta Traffic and the Lions Clubs of Atlanta until Tuesday because of today's holiday was announced. The meeting will be held Tuesday at 7:30 o'clock on the mezzanine of the Henry Grady hotel.

Atlanta Motor Club will have R. C. Broyles as principal speaker at a round table discussion open to all motorists, which will be held at noon Friday at the Wincoff club. Mr. Broyles is chairman of the safety and traffic committee of the club. Elimination of night street parking will be the principal topic.

City and county schools will open for the 1931-1932 term Tuesday, with approximately 90,000 pupils in the Fulton-Buckhead school system. Doors of all schools will be open at 8:30 a. m., and class work will follow immediately.

Atlanta postoffice will close at noon today in observance of the Labor Day holiday. Only one delivery of mail will be made in the downtown areas and none in the residential sections, it was announced by Postmaster E. K. Large.

Captain Reginald Wallace, secretary of the Y. M. C. A. of Dublin, will inaugurate a series of revival services at the Dixie Gospel tent at 7:30 o'clock tonight. The series will be continued through Sunday, September 13.

Class work in the Evening School of Applied Science, Georgia Tech, will begin Monday night, September 14, it was announced over the week-end by Professor R. S. Howell, instructor and director of the school. Registration of students will begin today.

The 24th annual meeting of the National Tax Association will be held at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel October 12-16, with approximately 1,000 delegates and some 100 guests, announced by the R. C. Norman, chairman of the local committee on arrangements.

'SUPER MERGER' URGED BY BUTLER

Combine of Basic Industries Advocated To Stabilize Employment.

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, in an address tonight suggested that a "combine of several great basic industries" should be formed to stabilize employment.

Dr. Butler, speaking in the Parrish Art Museum, declared the industries should be "so organized in the interest of the general public as to control production within the limits of a proper balance with an expanding power consumption."

He said it would then be practicable "both to stabilize and to regularize employment" within the field of each of a considerable number of large industries which are easily susceptible of regional or nation-wide organization.

"The next step," Dr. Butler said in elaborating upon the plan, "would be to make each one of these organized industries feel responsible for the employment and care of its great body of workers."

"When a new enterprise is undertaken and new capital sought, every consideration is given to studying the estimated production of the factory or mine or oil well in order that a satisfactory return upon the money invested may be assured."

"Why should not an equal amount of study be given to the problem of how many work-people are steadily needed for the enterprise and as to what provision can be made for their security within the limits of the ordinary fluctuation of the rise and fall of the production of the business?"

"Why should not an equal amount of study be given to the problem of how many work-people are steadily needed for the enterprise and as to what provision can be made for their security within the limits of the ordinary fluctuation of the rise and fall of the production of the business?"

Dr. Butler spoke also on various forms of employment insurance which have been brought to the fore in the current economic depression and approved suggestions for a five-day week and eventually a six-day week.

The speaker said conditions developing for something more than a century, including the displacement of hand labor by machines, "... have combined to bring about a situation in which it is estimated that there are nearly, if not quite, 30,000,000 human beings in Europe and America who are able and willing to work but who are not able to find gainful occupation."

"Signs are not wanting," he said, "that under the impulse of emotion and pressure of immediate need, courses of public action are likely to be proposed which, if adopted, will only increase the difficulties of the situation which now exists, as by bringing new and unsuspected difficulties in their train."

"Obviously there are two different and complementary ways to attack this problem. The first is through social organization and control of industry, the establishment of such balance between production and consumption—all of which might well be known as rationalization—as will reduce the number of unemployed as much as possible."

"The second is the provision of ways and means by which the irreducible minimum of unemployed may be steadily cared for on principles and by methods that sound both in morals and in economics."

THE TWITCHTAILS MOVE.

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

No home can truly happy be if lacking in security.

—Twitchtail the Squirrel.

Twitchtail the Ground Squirrel and Mrs. Twitchtail were completely upset. Yes, sir, they were completely upset. Something very terrible had happened to their friends and neighbors. As a result, there were many silent homes all about. Just what it was they didn't know, but they were very sure that it had something to do with the tempting barley that had been placed around those silent homes. In this they were right. That barley had been poisoned. You see, there were so many Squirrels and they had done so much damage to crops of all kinds on that ranch that the owners had decided that something must be done about it. So the poisoned grain had been put where the Squirrels would be sure to find it and very many had eaten it without the least hesitation. It was the good fortune of Twitchtail and Mrs. Twitchtail that the former had been suspicious and refused to touch it or allow Mrs. Twitchtail to touch it.

Down in their home under the big rock at the edge of the wheat field they talked over the dreadful thing that had happened. "I don't know just what it means," said Twitchtail, "but I am sure that those two-legged creatures we saw going about put out that barley to make us all sick. The question is what shall we do now?"

"Move," replied Mrs. Twitchtail very promptly. "I suppose you are right. Of course, you are right, my dear. You always are," replied Twitchtail, sighing mournfully. "When do we start?"

"Now," replied Mrs. Twitchtail very promptly. "I won't have a minute of peace until we are away from here."

Without another word Mrs. Twitchtail led the way out, Twitchtail meekly following. Outside he sat up for a look around. He even climbed up on the big rock, his favorite lookout. It was a lovely, peaceful scene. His heart came up in his throat at the thought of the dreadful thing that had happened and that perhaps he was seeing this view for the last time. Then he jumped down and scampered after Mrs. Twitchtail, who hadn't so much as turned her head. Where she was going she didn't know, but it was to be somewhere far from there. On this she was determined.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL
BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

It's queer how column correspondence comes in cycles. This morning's mail contains four letters from men and women asking me to discuss the problem of a man's marrying a woman much younger than himself. There could be no column between them for one letter came from California, one from New Jersey, one from Georgia and one from North Carolina.

Of the four I am printing the one that is impersonal. "I am interested in your observation regarding men marrying women older than themselves. I don't quarrel with the viewpoint but I believe that there is a better chance for happiness when the situation is reversed and the man is older than the woman. As you suggest, women do age much faster than men, and when the man is older his wife he naturally takes more pride in his appearance and more care to preserve the semblance of his youth, he remains young a long time with the young wife. Let's have something practical about the same time, kind consideration of this point."

There is no gainsaying the logic and the incomplete-ness of the argument above, but within it is reasonable. It reduces marriage to a mere physical basis when the spiritual and mental aspects of it are equally important. The matter of temperament and disposition, of ambition and aspiration, must play a big part in the successful mating of December with May. What a woman has, what she wants, what will satisfy her, are important things. For in this sort of marriage it is the woman who lays youth on the altar and one has a right to expect something for that immolation.

Some women, mature at twenty, are comfortable companions for men twice their age. Some men, youthful at 40, are ideal husbands for women half their age. All people expect to get happiness out of marriage but their ideas of happiness vary as do their personalities.

Provided a man is moral in the broad sense of the word, and provided the woman is conscientious in the broad sense of the word, successful marriage between them doesn't hinge on their comparative ages. You cannot reduce the spiritual relationship to mathematical precision. And when marriage ceases to be a spiritual relationship it is no longer true marriage. One measures the roast of beef by the pound. One measures the bolt of silk by the yard. One measures heat and cold by degrees and time by the days, but none of these measures will do for men and women in marriage. The things of the spirit cannot be weighed, or measured, or counted; but they can be sensed.

Culbertson on Contract

BY ELY CULBERTSON,
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

Penalties or Premiums

"To play for penalties or to play for premiums," as Hamlet might have said but did not, is one of the "rubs" of Contract Bridge. It can be laid down as a safe general principle that it is generally better to accept the penalty equivalent of what you expect to make at your own bid, rather than attempt to squeeze an extra trick out of the hand. The reason for this is plain. Played at your own declaration, the opponent's insignificant trumps may make pyramids of your giant Aces and Kings, and while the reward for making a certain game has been definitely determined, penalties may be even richer than you anticipate. It is, of course, foolish to accept a paltry penalty of 200 points, rather than a sure game. Such hunger for penalties is losing bridge and there is no easier opportunity to face at the Contract table than the player who doubles too early and too often. On the other hand, it is equally unwise to stretch the trick-taking possibilities of your hand too far and refuse to accept a sure and substantial penalty rather than an uncertain game.

The hand below, played in a rubber game, gave to the North and South players, both of whom were experts at the problem in choosing the preferable course—a sure Penalty Double or a try for a doubtful Slam. Inexpert players should have chosen the safe Double, as that reward was sure, and even experts could not have been criticized had they followed that course.

North and South vulnerable. East and West not vulnerable. South Dealer.

The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South West North East
1♥ Pass 2♠ (1) 3♠ (2)
3♥ Pass 4♠ (3) Pass
4♠ (4) Pass 5♠ (5)
Pass Dbl. (7) Pass Pass

1—North's Forcing Takeout is obvious. His hand contains 3 1-2 honor-tricks and two long suits.

2—East has 7 tricks with diamonds as trump. Even in the face of the strength shown by North and South, his bid is justified as laying the foundation for a possible bidding defense against North and South's almost certain game.

3—North completes the showing of his two-suited hand.

4—East decides that the penalty he suffers will not be as great as the probable loss if opponents make their Slam which from the bidding he feels certain they can do. He hopes, however, that West has length in spades and that by bidding six diamonds he has closed the only safe road to a Slam.

5—South has two losing diamonds and only two spades. North has never rebid the spades, so South fears the loss of a spade trick and probably 1 diamond trick. The sure penalty appears more desirable to him than a questionable attempt at a Slam in spades. The bidding has shown that a Grand Slam is not possible, otherwise North would have disclosed that there were no losers in the diamond suit.

6—North's bid of six spades is open to question. However, he feels reasonably sure that South holds the spade King and his extra length in the spade suit would seem to make it reasonably certain that if South holds that card, there is a good chance to make the Slam contract. South's rebid of the heart suit would seem to place a high honor in spades or diamonds in his hand.

7—West's Double is bad, as it marks the location of the spade honor. However, this would have been disclosed on the first play of the suit in any event.

In the play, East opened with the diamond King and followed with the Knave which North triumphed. North now led a spade to South's King and when East failed to follow, the unfavorable distribution of the trump suit was disclosed. South's last trump was held and the finesse taken. The Ace of spades was laid down in order to shorten West's trump holding. Then North led the Ace and King of clubs after which he put the Dummy in with a heart and hearts were continued, upon which North discarded his clubs. West was helpless. He followed suit to hearts three times, but his apparently safely guarded Knave of trumps never made a trick. Thus, North and South scored the premium for a vulnerable Small Slam, together with 100 points for the contract and 180 additional points below the line as a result of West's unadvised Double. North's bid of the spade Slam was made after a close weighing of the respective probabilities of a worthwhile set of the adverse contract against the likelihood of the spade Slam. It was a close decision with a fortunate outcome.

TODAY'S POINTER.

The Forcing Takeout has aptly been termed the backbone of the Forcing System. A Forcing Takeout is made when one player has opened the bidding and the other responds with a Jump bid in another suit. This Jump bid must be below the game level. In response to an opening bid of

JAUNTY BOLEERO MODEL IN SHEER WOOLEN.

At just this time of the year, one begins to weary of summer clothes, and longs for a new dress of darker hue.

And here's a beauty with a certain definite smartness of fall, yet with gaiety enough for late summer.

It is yankee-blue sheer woolen. It has a trim tailoredness all its own. The double-breasted revers and cuffs are eggshell faille crepe silk.

Black crepe satin with pinkish-beige crepe satin is another splendid choice.

Crepe marocain, flax crepe silk and caoutchouc-faille crepe are also appropriate.

Style No. 570 is designed in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 36 and 38 inches bust.

Size 16 requires 3-1/2 yards 39-inch, with 3-4 yard 39-inch contrasting.

Our Fall and Winter Fashion Magazine is ready. It contains styles for children, the miss and of course, a most attractive selection for adults including slenderizing effects for stout.

INSTALLMENT VII.

"But grandmother—"

"It's only weak and flabby people who allow their personal anxieties to interfere with their public duties. You can't go back on your contract tonight because of an accident to your pet dog. You can't, and not be ashamed of yourself."

"I'm not ashamed to stay with somebody I love terribly when he's dying," retorted Fabia, "even though he is only a dog. I'd be ashamed if I didn't. Mother, mother, what do you say?" For Lisa had appeared on the stairs above the group. When she spoke, it was in a very gentle tone.

"I'm afraid you've got to play the game, however hard, or you'll always feel you were a sort of quitter, won't you?"

Fabia had been captain of her hockey team at school. She understood this language.

"But I'll be a quitter to Thad."

"No, not really, only sentimentally. You can't actually help Thad any, dear. It's just a matter of tone."

"I'm afraid, Fabia. You must keep your contract with your public tonight—just the way Theodore Roosevelt and Harry Lauder kept theirs when they lost their sons in the war."

How beautiful of her mother to dignify Thad by comparing him with sons lost in the war! How beautiful of her, too, to dignify her by comparing her to such courageous men! Oh, her mother could always break down her defenses. Her mother could always persuade her. She bowed her head a little.

"Well," she murmured, "if you think I ought to—"

"Suddenly a bell rang."

"The first of the arrivals," said Nichols, in a tone of bright relief.

It was as if a magician had waved his hand over her when she reappeared in the silver, phosphorescent creation which Lisa had spent many hours in planning. The dress was liquid in the way it flowed over her, clinging close where it touched her, floating like mist where it fell away.

It revealed outlines and proportions unguessed, beneath a tress of silken and shimmering hair, rising and falling slopes (from slender neck to slender ankles), as gentle and supple as a footfall. Her bare neck and shoulders, now at the end of the summer, were the dark tan of a brown egg. They were of the softness and dull lustre of black china silk. And without powder! For there had been no time to do more in way of beautifying than to wash off the blood and dirt beneath a hot and cold shower, and then to slip on to her cool, hardly dried body the silvery dress, laid out ready for her, silvery stockings to match, and silver shoes with crystal heels; and last, to clasp about her neck the curious, old, many-pendant crystal-and-silver necklace, made by some long-dead Florentine for a princess to wear.

Her hair lay straight and smooth close to her head. For neither had there been time to make her hair fluffy, nor her cheeks rosy, by her usual method of rapid slapping, followed by a stiff hairbrush vigorously applied. She was very pale, but the omission of all color made the arching brows, the wide, deepest eyes, and upturning lips all the more striking.

The family had never seen Fabia in sophisticated evening dress before. Several of the aunts and uncles had arrived already when she appeared on the landing. They were amazed.

Fabia appeared perfectly tranquil and calm as she stood beside her mother, a little later, bowing and shaking hands with the fast-gathering dinner guests. A sort of grim composure shrouded her, as the usual feelings of an older woman. She was so concentrated on repeating the lines of her role, and so buoyed up by the demands of it, that the self-consciousness she often felt away from her completely. No one knew, not even the aunts and uncles, of the accident to Thad. Lisa had thought it would be easier so.

Nichols had warned all his intimate friends that his cousin's dance would be dry. Ever since the night at which Grandmother Vale was present was dry. And he had discovered that Aunt Lisa could be as Victorian and firm as Grandmother Vale herself, on occasions.

"Now a little something in the punch could be added without the Old Lady's knowing a thing about it," he had said to Lisa, "and the party would be an assured success. Really, you've got to offer a little inducement to the boys, Aunt Lisa, for staying up all night when they should be in bed and asleep. If these coming-out affairs are allowed to become too deadly, the Harvard men just won't come at all after awhile—at least not the ones you want."

"I'm sorry, but there will be nothing in the punch stronger than White Rock," quietly but firmly Lisa announced.

Nichols said no more. But he was determined that the first Vale coming-out party should be a success, and decided to provide for the orchestra himself. He had then proceeded to warn all his friends to come "prepared." But Lisa, too, was prepared. She had arranged that any offenders of good taste should be quietly persuaded, by a gentleman in conventional evening clothes, to be conveyed home, or to his room, in an automobile waiting for the purpose. Lisa had several of these kindly older men in reserve.

Lisa knew, if not personally, at least by name and connection, every one whom she had invited. Fabia's was a small dance. There were 300 boys invited for the carefully culled 75 girls. Lisa knew general facts about each one of the boys—what preparatory school he had attended, and, if not a Bostonian, who his people were and what they stood for in their community. There had been no wholesale issuing of invitations.

A wave of deep satisfaction flowed over Lisa as, unobserved, she looked on for a moment from a recessed corner of the hall at the perfect working-out of all the details she had so carefully planned, blending now in pleasing and voluminous unison. There was a crowding phalanx of black and white occupying valuable dancing space in all the rooms, much darting in and out and cutting-in.

Fabia, herself, was in constant demand. That was to be expected, of course, at her own party, but she did look lovely. There was dignity and charm in the calm, quiet way she had of silent acknowledgment of each departing partner, as well as to each approaching one. Whatever fears about Thad were stabbing Fabia beneath her silver armor, she was performing well. Lisa was proud of her. The supper dance would be announced soon. The party was an assured success.

Suddenly somebody at Lisa's elbow remarked quietly, "And it's all due to you," as if he had read her last thought.

"Barry!" she exclaimed. He was always reading her thoughts.

"Everything is going perfectly, isn't it?" he smiled. "As you planned it, as you inspired it, even to Fabia herself. Will you dance with me?"

It had been just into the midst of the macabre. How much more in rhythm her step was to his than any of the girls he had inflicted his age upon; and as compared to the few contemporary precedents—Lisa—Lisa! Was there anything in which she did not excel all other women in the world?

Out of the crowded hall he wove his way with Lisa into the dining room. There was an empty corner by the mantle where, like two leaves caught in a quiet pool in a swirling river, they drifted together for several minutes, not speaking.

Back and forth in the same empty corner, Fabia also was dancing. She did not know with whom. She had seldom known with whom all the evening. How unnecessary to have had fears about her popularity to-night! It worked automatically. As the evening wore on, Fabia had come to feel like a wheel in a well-oiled machine, performing her part according to the inventor's design. She had become so used to the established repetition of cutting-in that it surprised her no more; nor caused her anxiety if there occurred a slight variation. She didn't have to make any effort herself at all, it appeared. There was no time for conversation. No necessity for resourcefulness. All she had to do was to look up and smile, and submit herself to a different height, a different lead, and then follow.

QUIMET'S WIN BIGGEST THRILL OF GOLF YEAR

Billy Howell Shared Honors of Amateur Meet With Veterans.

By Paul Mickelson,

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—(P)—Francis Quimet's great comeback after 17 long and disappointing years to recapture the national amateur championship at Beverly unquestionably was the biggest golfing thrill of 1931, the first year of the Jones era.

The 72-hole overtime struggle between Billy Burke and George Von Elm at Inverness last July for the national open crown probably packed in more golfing drama, but the big amateur show's youngest surviving field in history stirred the imaginations of young and old alike.

GLORIOUS EXAMPLE.
It moved with glorious example that he do come back, a lesson that the American sportsman, probably more than anyone else, loves to see demonstrated.

To add a touch of fate to the comeback, Quimet turned his trick 17 years to the day, almost to the hour and by the identical margin by which he first won the title from Jerome Travers at Ekwanok, Manchester, Vt. Quimet defeated Travers, 6 and 5, September 5, 1914, and crushed Jack Westland, of Chicago, yesterday by the same score at Beverly.

Probably no one was as jubilant over Quimet's comeback today as Bobby Jones, who surrendered the last of his four major golf championships without a shot. Jones watched every stroke Quimet made in his final two matches with "Billy the Kid" Howell, from Richmond, Va., and Westland, from Richmond, Va.

VETERANS PULL.
Scores of veterans, among them Charles "Chick" Evans, of Chicago, who has been trying to stage a comeback from his "boy wonder" days, hoped that every shot clattering off the Boston vet's war clubs would find its mark during his last two days of campaigning. They all confessed that they had received their greatest punch from golf in many a year.

King Bobby's absence from competition naturally trimmed the receipts of the shows at Beverly, but every act was a good one. The tourney saw almost all the favorites drop by the wayside in job lots with the surprising march of America's younger set.

"BILLY THE KID."
Of the youngsters, it was "Billy the Kid," who provided the big punch. Coming to his first tournament unknown outside his own neighborhood, Howell gained a reputation by showing Johnny Goodman, of Omaha, out of the championship picture and marching straight to the semi-finals, where he met the one-time champion. With a free, easy swing and a sound game, he impressed the observers as a shotmaker destined to travel far in the game.

Paul Jackson, of Kansas City; Frank Connelly, of Detroit; Lester Holstad, of college and national public links fame from St. Paul; Gus Moreland, of Dallas; Jack Martin, of Chicago, and Johnny Shields, of Seattle, were some of the most promising "kids" to impress the galleries. There were others of more experience, but as a whole the "kids" and Quimet stole the acts.

Chapman was leading a field of six cars in a close preliminary heat. He was rounding a curve when he was hit by his engine billowed into the air. He saw the other cars were so close they would all pile up if he stopped on the track.

Chapman jumped his car off the board track and drove away at high speed while sheets of flame from the burning motor whipped back into his face.

When he was a sufficient distance from the track so that the fire did not menace the crowded grandstand, he leaped from the burning car and collapsed. He was taken to the Municipal hospital, at Plainfield, suffering from severe burns.

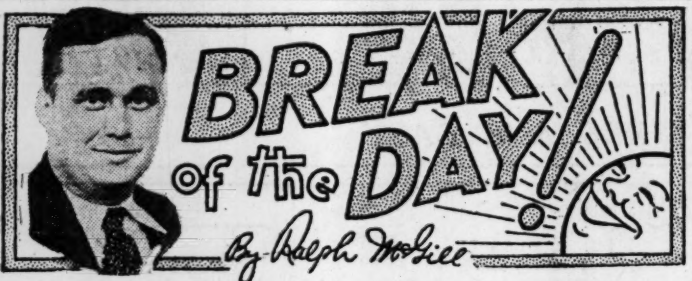

Hagen Defeated.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 6.—(P)—Walter Hagen, nationally known professional, and Joe Burman, pro at the Frankfort Country Club, lost an exhibition best ball golf match here today to Alvin Hume, Jr., instructor, and Bob Craig, pro at the Audubon Country Club. The score was 3 and 2 over the 18 holes of the Greensfides course. Hagen shot a 76, Craig 88, and Burman 87.

Boys in Sing Sing To Play Football

OSSENING, N. Y., Sept. 6.—(AP)—The convicts of Sing Sing prison are going to be put on the gridiron this fall. Warden Lewis E. Lawes announced today he had accepted a private concern's offer to provide an assortment of football uniforms.

The inmates will have to play among themselves, however. Games with outsiders will be barred as likely to become too rough.

BREAK of the DAY

Pig skin—the one the boys love to touch—down—is with us again today. And are you, too, clapping hands?

Out at the Flats Sunday were a dozen or more husky youngsters with broad shoulders and tanned faces moving restlessly around the campus or sitting briefly in dormitory rooms.

Over in Athens, Ga-Ga, Costa's and Gus' and the other soft drink emporiums were filled with husky youngsters with broad shoulders and tanned faces, moving restlessly about.

Just one more day and the old familiar names will be in the headlines—Jack (The Ripper) Roberts, Catfish Smith, Sugar Cain, Jap Hart. And in a few more days, there will be new names, names that were obscured last year in lineups of freshmen games or in the list of subs carried on trips.

"THE RIPPER" HIMSELF.

Jack (The Ripper) Roberts should be up among the leading scorers this fall. It was in 1929 that this reporter named him "The Ripper." He was a sophomore then.

The Bulldogs were playing at Chapel Hill. I am not sure if that Saturday wasn't one which made Georgia the team it was that year and last.

The Saturday before the Bulldogs had shocked, literally shocked, the football world by beating Yale, 15 to 0, with a team that went on the field licked in everyone's mind but their own. The North Carolina game was the following Saturday. There was much speculation as to whether the Georgia team would fold up after the superhuman effort of the week before against Yale.

It was a terrific game. North Carolina had a real team. The tide of battle ebbed and flowed. And then Georgia seemed to fade a bit. North Carolina took the ball. Georgia held and forced a kick.

Off the bench came Substitute Roberts at fullback. They gave him the ball and he ripped—there was no other word for it—through the left side of the Tar-heel line.

He kept it up, hammering away, ripping them apart, driving on. Crouched up on the rim of the stadium in that curious crowd that inhabits the North Carolina press box—professors' wives, wives and sweethearts of newspapermen, old ladies, all of them seeming a bit angry at the presence of the working press—Roberts looked like something inspired.

No doubt he was. The flame that he had was imparted to the others. The name has stuck since then and he deserves it. Jack (The Ripper) Roberts. He should have a great year.

MYSTERY TEAM.

Tech's team steps forth today lost in a crowd of determined youngsters. No one knows who the eleven men will be who start for the Gold and White this fall. Even the captain is lost somewhere in the crowd of players. He will be elected later, chosen because of his work and his qualities of leadership.

There is newness on the coaching staff, too. Bobby Dodd, one of the greatest backs the south has ever had, has imparted some of his spirit to the backs. Jack Cannon, the indefatigable lineman at Notre Dame, has given the line some of his eagerness to work.

The Jackets will be a team that alumni will be proud of. It is the most interesting outfit the Flats has had in years. And somewhere in the crowd are some stars—some new ones. They will develop this fall. And seeing them will be fun.

GROVE NEARS NEW RECORD.

Despite the brilliant record of the southpaws in baseball, not one has ever won 30 ball games in a single season. Bob Grove still has a chance.

Rube Waddell and Eddie Plank, who ruled the southpaws some years ago, never reached that number. Waddell never won more than 27 in one campaign. Rixey won 28 in 1928, the last year a left-hander has led the National league. Marquard, Nehf and Rixey have all tried and missed.

Grove has won 27 games. He has until September 27, and should breeze through to a new record for southpaws. The left-handers are said to have come through the war without an injury. But they don't have all the luck.

GROVE GETTING SMARTER.

Grove, the boys say, is getting smarter. Last year he struck out more than twice as many men as he has this year. Which means that he isn't trying to throw it past them now.

HO, HUM.

Mr. Loyd Wilhoit, Advertising Manager, Davison-Paxon Company: Dear Loyd—Who is going to model those Tech season tickets next Tuesday and Wednesday? And are they beautiful?

SAUER IS CALLED WILSON DRAWS NEXT CHAMPION CUB SUSPENSION

There will not be a champion on the wrestling card at Spiller field Tuesday night, but at least two and possibly three of the foremost contenders (according to how you rate your wrestlers) will be seen in action.

Pete Sauer, or Ray Steele, as he is called in New York and New England, is ranked by a great many critics as the man destined to lift Jim London's title when it is lifted. The Apollo of the mat not only has great physical gifts, but is a very skillful and scientific wrestler.

Tiny Roebuck, his opponent, also is a powerful man. Paul Jones, always a favorite in Atlanta, meets the red-haired Pat O'Shocker and admirers of the two men have insisted on giving it equal rank with the main go involving Sauer and Roebuck.

The show, which Charley Rentrop thinks would be a wow even in Madison Square Garden, may be seen at popular prices.

KAYE DON WINS OPENING HEAT IN HARMSWORTH

Gar Wood Suffers First Defeat Since Winning Trophy in 1920.

By Joseph F. Hearst,
United Press Staff Correspondent.

DETROIT, Sept. 6.—(UP)—Flashing the greatest speed ever shown in a Harmsworth race, Kaye Don in the Miss America II today defeated Gar Wood in the Miss America IX in the first 30-mile heat of the famous classic.

Wood brought his Ninth in second, a good mile behind the flying white-hot English boat, while his brother, George Wood, in the Miss America VIII, trailed in several hundred yards behind Gar.

Both the Miss England and the Miss America IX surpassed all former speed records for the 30 miles, both in heat and lap time. It was the first time Wood had been defeated since he won the historic plaque off Cowes, England, in 1920.

RACE AGAIN TODAY.
The second heat will be run tomorrow at 5:30 p. m., E. S. T. The race goes to the winner of two heats.

As Don and his crew flashed over the line to receive the winning gun the crowd went wild. Horses on boats added to the din. Don's happy mechanics, Dick Garner and Roy Plattford, waved a greeting, but Don, still traveling great speed, kept his hands on the wheel.

It was estimated that half a million people saw the race from the river banks. Miss England's average for the 30 miles was 59.9 miles an hour. The previous heat record was 77.300 miles an hour. Don's fastest lap was the second when he averaged 65.017 miles an hour. The previous lap was 70.952, set by Wood in the Ninth a year ago.

SPEED TERRIFIC.
The Miss England's great speed was manifest from the first. Don Wood across the starting line and led him on the first lap by 100 yards. Wood jumped into the lead on the west turn, but only for a moment. The only time the Miss England took the wash of the American boat.

As the boats roared out of the turn, Don's mechanics opened the throttles and the big six-cylinder hydroplane shot back into the lead. From then on Don gradually widened the gap between him and the trailing Miss America. It was on this second lap that he made his fastest time. On the final lap, with victory assured, he cut down the speed and still led Wood by more than a mile when he reached the finish line.

SHAKE HANDS.
Don took the Miss England half way around the course after the finish and then cut across the river to the judges' stand, where the boat was tied up. Wood, standing on the deck of the English boat.

Both pilots spoke briefly over the radio. Don, his ears still ringing from the roar of the giant Rolls motors, was visibly confused. Later he told reporters he was well satisfied with the Miss England's performance.

"It was a great race and I enjoyed it immensely," he said. "Our boat behaved beautifully, and I am more than happy that I may be able to take the trophy back home to England with me."

Fort McPherson Routs Guards, 13-5

Fort McPherson opened its 1931 fall polo season with a 13-to-5 victory over the Governor's Horse Guards Sunday afternoon at Fort McPherson. It was the first of a series of seven matches to be played within the next few months for a trophy to be presented to the winner.

Lieutenant Bill Biddle and Lewis Brown, of the winners, were the offensive stars of the game with four goals each. Their long accurate driving and excellent riding featured the afternoon's play. Lieutenant Baker, at back for Fort McPherson, also played a great game and prevented several Horse Guard scores by good defensive work.

R. D. Christian, and Lieutenant Moran played the best game for the losers. Christian, with three goals, was second in the scoring for the afternoon. It is only fair to state the Guards played with inferior mounts. In the latter part of the game Fort McPherson sent McNair, Shubert and Hall into the lineup and they continued to set a hot pace and scored three goals.

For training rules violations was the only explanation made public by the Cubs' office in connection with the suspension. Wilson's salary of $30,000 a year is believed the highest paid any National league player.

When the Cubs were leaving their special car that brought them home after loss of their sixth straight game to the Cincinnati Reds, Manager Rogers Hornsby curtly informed Wilson to report to President Ernest Veeck at noon.

"Hack" shuffled into Veeck's office and was notified of the suspension. The outfielder protested his case at length, but without avail. He walked out of the office with his head down, refusing to talk.

Wilson's batting average of .261 and his record of 13 home runs so far this year compared to his mark of .356 last year and 56 homers well chronicles the story of the fall of the former idol of northside fans.

The 1930 record, on which Wilson

Lead Teams Into Action Today

Preliminary skirmishes to the football wars will begin today in 23 camps in the Southern Conference. It is being predicted that this season will witness one of the dizziest races in the history of the conference.

The three men shown above will lead a trio of the outstanding teams this season. Alabama, Georgia and Tulane are certain to have strong elevens. There are many others who will be hard to beat also.

CRACKERS WIN THIRD STRAIGHT

Rousing Double By Mock Beats Smokies in Twelfth, 10-6.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 6.—Knoxville fans came pretty close to putting on the riot act today as the Crackers won a 12-inning baseball game from the Smokies, 10 to 6. Chapman's home run, his fourth consecutive hit of the day, tied the score in the eighth, and the Dobs crew went four more innings before they could get to Burns for the victory.

Umpire Buck Campbell had to be escorted from the park by police as a result of a decision made at third base in the twelfth. Hal Lee, who had doubled to open the inning, attempted to take third on Chapman's punt, but Erickson's throw apparently beat him by a shade. At least these Knoxville fans thought so, and they were not alone. The Crackers and enjoyed it if they could have placed their hands on the husky gent.

After that decision the Smokies went to pieces. The Atlanta club had an easy time scoring four runs. Young Mock, the rousing shortstop, stepped to the plate with the bases loaded and delivered a rousing double that scored the winning runs.

Burns, after relieving Lawson, pitched splendid ball. After Autry had tripled to open the eleventh, the stocky Knoxville moundman made Barnes roll out weakly, and then struck out Cummings and Williams in order.

The clubs play two games Labor Day, in the morning at 10:30 o'clock and another in the afternoon at 3:30.

GIANTS SPURT
TO CHANGE
CARDINAL LEADYank-Senator Duel for Second Place Holds Interest in American.

The Cincinnati Reds put together their longest winning streak of the season, and enjoyed a perfect week, as the expense of the Chicago Cubs, but the only benefit their feat brought was for the New York Giants.

Hopelessly sunk in the cellar, the Reds won six straight games from the Cubs and dropped them nearly out of the race for second place, while the Giants turned in one of the greatest seven-day performances of the season, to take a safe lead over Chicago and become a serious threat to the security of the St. Louis Cardinals. The Giants did everything right, as they won nine games out of ten. Although they had to take second place to the Reds, they led their league in every other respect except fielding.

The New York slugged out 100 hits for 49 runs while holding their opponents to only 15 runs in ten games. They also topped the circuit with four homers, and the best fielding mark of the older league with only three errors. They were second to the Giants in scoring with 38 runs and held the Cubs to 15 runs in 100 outs. The Boston Braves, who also played ten games, lost only one, made 90 hits.

In the American league, another New York team, the Yankees, made almost as complete a triumph for the week which ended Saturday. The Yanks won six games and lost only one to wind up only a half game behind the second place Washington Senators. Washington tied with Detroit for second place with five victories and two losses.

Traveler Spurt
Marks Southern.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 6.—(UP)—For the third consecutive week, the Little Rock set the pace in the Southern Baseball Association while the Barons coasted into the week with only a few losses as victories last week.

Little Rock was on 16 of the last 21 games played. The Travelers won 15 and lost only one last week. Memphis was second with five victories and three defeats, and New Orleans third with four wins and three lost.

The champion Barons were second in scoring with 37 runs in six games, and the Chicks third with 45 in eight contests. Memphis was second in hitting, 86 safeties in eight games, and Birmingham third with 82 in six.

Nashville led in homers with seven circuit clouts, Knoxville was second with six and Birmingham and Memphis had five.

Little Rock settled down solidly in second place during the week with a three and one-half game lead over the Chicks. The Barons clinched the pennant from a standpoint of mathematical certainty.

BATTLE IN MATCH WITH

JUNIOR COEN.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(UP)—

The task of eliminating the excess baggage of the national tennis singles championship on the courts of the West Coast Club at Forest Hills, was resumed tomorrow in the second round of play in the Golden Jubilee men's national tennis singles championship on the courts of the West Coast Club at Forest Hills.

Most of the second round matches find top-flight players pitted against comparative unknowns. There are, however, several notable exceptions and these exceptions are expected to provide enough first class tennis to satisfy the critical customer.

The last of these exceptions is the Texas-against-Texas battle of Wilmer Allison and Berkeley Bell, the former of Austin, the latter of Dallas.

The two players, who are both ranked No. 3 in national ranking, is expected to be a real struggle. You can't tell about Bell, however. He was faced by Jean Borotra in the first round last year, and proceeded to put the French Davis-cupper out of the running.

"ON THE SPOT."

France, by the way, is likely to lose two of its representatives today. Bryan Grant, the Atlanta Jackrabbit, is expected to be a tough opponent, and no one will be surprised if the Georgia youngster runs the non-toopy Jacques to death. Brugnon may be a little better, but he is not so likely to become leg-weary. Once Grant gets his opponent tired, it should be all over but the shouting.

PREP GRIDMEN

TO WORK HARD

THROUGH WEEK

By Roy White.

Nine Atlanta prep football teams will settle down to a week of strenuous work this afternoon, while another—University school—will start Monday, September 14, after the opening of the school.

The high school boys' high and G. M. A. prep football teams, who will begin the hard work Tuesday or Wednesday, depending entirely on the weather.

Boys' High and G. M. A. have had two weeks of preliminary training in the mountains of north Georgia and north Carolina, while Tech High has had two weeks of hard work at the University of Georgia.

Coach Tolbert at Tech High plans one long, hard scrimmage during the week and will follow it up with a series of ten games without a let-up. His team plays four sectional champions and four new foes, which is plenty of opposition.

Boys' High was hit hard by graduation, and Coach Doyal used the two weeks at Lake Burton to develop the youngsters, which he expects to build his 1931 team. He is more than pleased with the results, and, with the addition of several scrubs from the University of Georgia, expects to build his 1931 team.

G. M. A. returned to the city during the week, and will start campus drills within the next few days, after the opening of school.

Fulton, Russell, and Decatur High have been working on their signal drills during the early part of the week.

Marist and Commercial will start work this afternoon, and Wednesday each of the teams will be in full swing for the coming season.

Brant, Roswell, a former University school athlete, has been signed to coach the Bluebirds for the 1931 season, replacing Hank Heeke, a former Tech basketball star.

EDITED BY M. D. GLEASON

There is hardly a need or a want that cannot be filled in Atlanta's stores and factories.

SPECIALIZED TRAINING HELPFUL IN BUSINESS

The question of what to do with one's life after high school is always important, but this year it is of particular vital concern because of the economic situation. There is a definite trend toward better things, and certainly now is the time to make the preparation that will enable one to participate in a larger capacity in the prosperity that the most conservative economists say is surely on the way.

Success in almost any undertaking now depends fundamentally upon two things, a good general education and a specialized training. The term "specialized training" presents a picture of the vast possibilities and grave responsibilities of those sharing its perplexities. To enter into any phase of the commercial business and be able to cope with its perplexities in any degree, no matter how small, requires specific preparation. To be in line for the better positions of all kinds, it is necessary that the person be specifically equipped for employment in some line of effort for which there is a market. Business has no room for the American life that he who lacks business training is always at a disadvantage. This is true now more than formerly. New conditions have developed in all fields of endeavor, industry, business and the professions. Competition is keener than ever before and will continue to increase. Preparedness is the keynote of success in business; progress demands more and better preparation. Much time and money is spent every year by large concerns seeking out those who are capable of filling the higher positions, and more and more they are looking to the business colleges to furnish them the young men and women to fill these positions, and who will eventually obtain the remunerative salaries that these concerns are ready and willing to pay to those who have had specific training.

"We have been very proud of the achievements of our graduates," states Miss E. Katherine Reid, president of the Crichton Business College and School of Shorthand. "The high success and recognition that the majority of them have attained gives me the impulse to say that there is no reason why anyone with an ambition to make good and a willingness to receive specialized training should not succeed in any chosen business or profession and enjoy a full measure of happiness while doing so."

"It has become a recognized fact that a knowledge of bookkeeping, writing, bookkeeping and kindred subjects is helpful in any undertaking. As an aid to further study there is no greater time-waster, as a means of immediate entrance into any particular line of work there is no better stepping stone; as a protection against economic dependence there is no more certain way."

CREDIT MAN SEES BETTER BUSINESS

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Dr. Stephen I. Miller, in a monthly review sent to the members of the National Association of Credit men, today expressed the opinion that business had passed its midsummer lull and within the next few weeks should "begin to get some benefit from seasonal activity."

Although production in general is still at low levels, particularly in the steel and motor industries, Miller noted that the steel industry is "going into the autumn period under fair headway."

Certain protection, and as a matter of general satisfaction there is no greater single asset.

"We are constantly watching for a means of increasing the efficiency of our students. They make unusually good progress in their work because the conditions surrounding them are conducive to study and favorable to rapid advancement. We create an ambition to make good by providing well-lighted classrooms, strictly modern equipment, thorough, well-planned courses. No trouble nor expense is spared to give them all possible encouragement and assistance to the end that they may complete their course quickly, economically and with the largest degree of efficiency possible. We make every effort to be of real service by endeavoring to meet the definite demands of the employer with a student especially qualified for a particular position. The individual attention we give students throughout their courses affords us an opportunity to study the ability and progress of each pupil very closely. Our interest in helping our young men and women secure positions where they can show their ability and earn advancement rapidly is of paramount importance to us."

"We strongly advise every prospective student to finish high school, if possible, and college, if they desire it, and are fitted for it, but for those who are not able to have this advantage, we counsel them not to be discouraged—their course at Crichton's can be made the foundation of obtaining this higher education, by providing the means of earning their own way."

Crichton's Business College was founded 40 years ago, and thousands of its graduates have made success in life, founded upon the splendid training they received at this institution. Making no extravagant claims of accomplishment, but relying on its own merit, basing its claim for patronage and prestige on a constantly increasing enrollment of satisfied students and the friendly co-operation of the public, it continues to stand as one of the strongest business colleges in the entire south.

U. S. ISSUE DOMINATES WEEK'S BOND MARKET

BY ALEXANDER HENDERSON.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The most important single event of the past week in the bond market was the offering of $800,000,000 of 3 per cent 20-year treasury bonds of the federal government.

The interest rate on the issue is slightly below the yield rates on similar outstanding government obligations at the time the new issues were offered. However, substantial subscriptions from banks were received, as expected. The banks are allowed to pay for the bonds in "book credit." That is, they credit the government with deposits of the amount of the subscriptions. The banks pay one-half of 1 per cent interest on these deposits and receive the difference between that and the interest on the bonds as their profit. This 2 1/2 per cent difference is considerably higher than the open market rates for prime loans, which are not at all plentiful.

On the other hand the banks are protected to some extent against a possible declining market by the privilege extended to foreign government debtors of offering Liberty and treasury bonds at par value in settlement of their debt payments. As soon as these issues drop below par the foreign governments would be likely to buy them for presentation under the debt settlement agreements at par.

Incidentally because of the book credit to the government, bankers do not expect any unusual developments in the money market as a result of the treasury financing, although there may be some reflection of the quarterly income tax payments due on September 15.

As a whole the bond market declined irregularly, railroad obligations as a result of weakness on the last two days of the week lost all or most of their gains of the earlier part of the week, although still considerably above the final levels of two weeks ago. Recent reports of seasonal improvement in the steel industry, which were much smaller than normally, probably helped to check the advance in the rails which had been so conspicuous on the six consecutive days ending last Tuesday.

Public utility and industrial loans declined irregularly also but the movement in them was less uniform than in the rails and therefore less noticeable.

No indication of any significant change in the nature of the market as a whole appeared. The interest rates were normal times the week before. Labor Day was usually quiet. And last week was no exception. Offerings of new issues totaling $7,514,000, compared with $8,150,000 the previous week, served to illustrate this fact.

Bright Spots in Business Relieve Dark Background

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(AP)—If the autumn stimulus to trade has been tardy, business appears to be taking the attitude of better late than never, and traces of cheer appeared in reports of the past week, at least from certain lighter lines of industry and trade.

The mercantile reports have indicated an appreciable expansion in wholesale trade in each of the past two weeks, and cooler weather and the reopening of schools have helped sales at retail. On the whole, clearance sales of recent weeks seem to have moved most of the remainder of summer merchandise, although at little or no profit in many cases.

The receding of workers in some volume by the leading maker in the low-price division has been a sign of seasonal stirring in the automotive industry, although it has on the whole been slow in starting work on new models, and production has fallen to extraordinary low levels. The belated work on new models is in part the result of the agreement to defer their introduction until late in the year.

The steel industry continues to drag along at close to 30 per cent of ingot capacity, and hopes of anything very satisfactory in the form of an autumn upturn are vanishing. An autumn upturn in the steel industry has not always materialized over the past several years, and the weekly steel trade reviews of the past week were rather gloomy.

The heavy construction projects under way remain a sustaining factor in steel. Railroads are still restricting purchases, with few exceptions to absolute essentials, in view of the low state of their revenues. The steel industry, furthermore, is expecting new production in the motor industry to get under way gradually, and is not counting on much immediate business from that quarter.

Despite the several heavy construction projects under way, the volume of building construction remains distressingly low. The report of continued slow progress in the building of the new federal building in Washington shows some improvement over the first two weeks, but the daily average for three weeks is well below that of July. CURB LIST WEAKENS DESPITE LASSITUDE

BY JOHN L. COOLEY.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The curb market alternated between extreme dullness and a moderate degree of weakness last week. Prices tended to take the downward path, however, even when activity was almost at a standstill, and with the line of least resistance obviously in that direction a more active day followed the stagnation of the earlier sessions.

Short sellers had their best success with the specialties. High-priced issues of that description trade in odd lots and have a thin market at best, so that offerings brought some large declines. Aluminum of America, Parker Rustproof, Singer Manufacturing, Mead Johnson and a few others were noticeably soft.

Trading at midweek was featured by the precipitous drop in National Short-Term Securities "A." Officials of the company, which extends short-term loans on building construction projects in and near New York city, attributed the break to the bears, asserting the corporation's financial condition was excellent. The stock broke from 20 1/2 to 13 1/2 and subsequently went to 11 1/2 before the market quiet and steady in the last trading day of the short week.

Dix, with few exceptions, were dull. Expectation that the end of the year would reopen brought slight losses in most issues, although Gulf had a sharp break. With prices on the upswing, both for crude and gasoline, the industry is anxiously awaiting immediate developments in the southwest.

Utilities had a heavy undertone, perhaps because professional investors would have an effect on earnings. The only break of consequence, however, was in Northern American Light. Its sharp decline was attributed to speculative liquidation.

WAGE CUTTING PLANS CHARGED TO BANKERS

WORCESTER, Mass., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Edward F. McGrady, legislative agent of the American Federation of Labor, tonight charged before the Worcester Central Labor Union that "there is a movement on foot by the bankers of the nation to deflate still lower American wages."

Bankers who participate in such a movement, McGrady said, are the "real public enemies of the nation."

with which banks in some sections are burdened, but has evinced little enthusiasm over measures yet proposed.

Bright Spots. The textile and shoe industries continue to provide the outstanding bright spots in the business picture.

The weekly reports of freight car loadings has shown moderate gains for the past two weeks, but the upturn has been so far below the normal seasonal upswing in August as to be altogether discouraging. Electric power production as reported during August has also been a little disappointing, failing to maintain the improved trend of July. The last week of the month saw a less than seasonal gain, and was 3 per cent under the like period of last year.

Commodity prices continue to show a fair degree of stability, as they have for the past several weeks, although stabilization at these levels is regarded as anything but satisfactory, especially by the farmer. Of some encouragement is the fact that corn used as fodder for live stock, and those available for home use, are generally larger than last year's. It is believed in important financial quarters that this year's crops on the whole have been grown with less bank credit than in previous years, and at very low cost, and that returns have been sufficient to liquidate 1931 indebtedness.

A private survey recently conducted by a large financial concern reports that the national money business leaders to look for some seasonal upturn in autumn, but says some are skeptical as to whether the seasonal gain will be as large as usual.

Mr. Guthman continued, "They are thoroughly familiar with paper stocks and printing. . . . two of the most important elements which enter into envelope manufacture. This particular publishing house is one of the best known in the south. Their publication is read and highly respected in hundreds of thousands of southern homes."

Particularly interesting are small excerpts from the letter which the local concern received along with the order: "In view of the good quality of envelopes you manufacture together with the splendid service given our orders at all times. . . . we wish to show our appreciation by placing an order with you. . . . Another firm has a little edge on your quotation, nevertheless you may enter our order."

Mr. Guthman said that his company is evidently appreciated in many other sections as well as in the south, for their envelopes are now being shipped into practically all parts of the United States. Particularly is this fact true of a special envelope developed and patented by Mr. Guthman and known as the four-in-one pay envelope. It is used by manufacturers in making up their pay rolls and it is claimed for it that it reduces pay roll complaints on the part of employees to an absolute minimum, thereby conserving time for the employer's pay roll forces.

BATTERY COMPANY ANNOUNCES CHANGE

The Mellen Battery Company announces that they are selling a 13-plate Willard battery at the lowest price since they began selling these batteries several years ago.

The Willard Storage Battery Company, says S. B. Mellen, "foresees the need of meeting the changing trends toward lower prices in the automotive field and through the aid of a change in system in mass production, they are letting us have the same high efficiency battery at such a low price that it was unthinkable last year and even up to a few weeks ago."

The Willard Storage Battery Company has been making batteries over 20 years and has 38,000 dealers, like ourselves, scattered throughout all parts of the world, the announcement recently reaching us that the 25,000,000th Willard battery was made and exhibited."

ENVELOPE COMPANY GETS LARGE ORDER

The Atlanta Envelope Company has recently received a large order for envelopes from one of the south's oldest and largest farm papers. "This order," said S. Guthman, president of the company, whose facilities are devoted entirely to the manufacture of commercial envelopes, "is quite a tribute to our facilities and the quality of our envelopes, we feel."

"We think we are justified in feeling this way because few concerns are in a better position to understand the quality and value of envelopes than are the various publishing houses," Mr. Guthman continued. "They are thoroughly familiar with paper stocks and printing. . . . two of the most important elements which enter into envelope manufacture. This particular publishing house is one of the best known in the south. Their publication is read and highly respected in hundreds of thousands of southern homes."

Particularly interesting are small excerpts from the letter which the local concern received along with the order: "In view of the good quality of envelopes you manufacture together with the splendid service given our orders at all times. . . . we wish to show our appreciation by placing an order with you. . . . GOVERNMENT IS HIT ON BUSINESS ROLE

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(AP)—John Dunham, a Fort Worth, Texas, stockman, announced tonight that representatives of labor, industry and agriculture would meet in Washington in November to press upon members of the next congress the need of withdrawal of the government from private enterprise.

Dunham said the organization now being formed will co-operate with the efforts of Charles A. Wilson, of Chicago, and others, but has no connection with the Wilson group.

"Governor Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, United States Senator Couzens, of Michigan, and William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor," he said, "will participate in our effort. We believe that what we will suggest to congress would materially assist in relieving the business depression."

NEW ORLEANS COTTON YIELDS MORE GROUND

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The cotton market during the past week has been dominated by nearness of the long Labor Day holidays and the next government report due Tuesday morning, September 8. As is usually the case under such circumstances, trading has been largely restricted to liquidation and evening up of commitments, as traders generally do not care to carry large interests in the market over the bureau period, particularly with a holiday preceding.

As the short interest had been pretty well covered, the market received but slight support from that side of the account, and the bulk of the trading came from liquidation of the long interest, coupled with moderate short selling by scalpers. There was also some hedge selling, although the placing of hedges so far has been much smaller than usual owing to the delay in the movement of the crop.

There was also a disposition of traders to hold off until something definite develops as a result of the agitation in favor of a material cut in acreage next season, enforced by state legislation.

Trade opinion leans toward some increase in the forthcoming government estimate over that of a month ago, and such private estimates as have appeared during the week pointed in that direction. According to most advices the August deterioration has been somewhat less than the average. It is expected, however, that the census bureau will show rather small gains for the period prior to September 1, as it is known the picking and ginning have been backward.

The following shows the high, low and closing sales in the New Orleans futures market during the past week compared with a year ago:

	High	Low	Close	1 Yr. Ago
Oct.	7.12	6.87	6.87	11.28
Nov.	7.24	6.94	6.94	11.45
Jan.	7.36	7.00	7.01	11.53
Mar.	7.61	7.17	7.17	11.68
May	7.80	7.35	7.35	11.84

MATTRESS COMPANY TO AID COTTON PLAN

"We were pleased to note in the press lately," says T. H. Moore, president of the Imperial Bedding Company of 442 Cain street, N. E., "where a south Georgia woman land-owner tenants have at least one mattress made from their own raised cotton made this year."

"As mattress builders we are heartily in accord with her idea, but suggest that 45 pounds of lint cotton be used where she stipulates 40 pounds. The reason for this is 45 is the accepted standard to make a good, full comfortable bed, and in our over 20 years of making mattresses, we do not like to see a mattress work skimp anywhere."

"We also see in this move a great opportunity for Georgia-raised cotton to be made up into Georgia-made mattresses, and if Georgia people want to do more than just talk about the cotton situation will co-operate with us, we will make them new felt mattresses from this, or last year's leftover cotton."

"This means that people living in the cotton states can get the highest grade felted mattresses made of new, clean cotton covered with their own choice of selections of the best domestic or imported tickings. We carry a complete line of new and fancy tickings."

"When we installed our big felted machine about two years ago we added an improved machine better than the old-style ones and then with an added device of our own, we can run through 150 mattresses a day."

"We are buying bales of new cotton to sell at the market price to our customers, or will be ready to receive 45 pounds from anywhere with instructions open to ship newly-made mattresses back. In this connection, it is well to remember that while a mattress is bulky it only costs a few cents to ship it a good distance, and being well wrapped it will arrive at destination without damage."

"As we see it," concluded Mr. Moore, "there is an opportunity to get the best felted all-cotton mattress at about one-third of former costs, and then if the southern, Georgia and Atlanta people in particular, want to be really patriotic to help the cotton situation, they can invest in 45 pounds of new cotton and sleep for many years upon a most comfortable all-cotton felt mattress."
